LEVEL 6 ASSESSMENT SPECIFICATION

Student name:	Anonymous Submission	Student ID number:	NA
Programme:	BSc (Hons) Psychology BSc (Hons) Psychology and Counselling BSc (Hons) Psychology and Criminology
Module:	The Psychology of Prejudice and Discrimination
Module code:	ECPS6022	Contribution to Overall Module Assessment (%):	50%
Lecturer:	Dr Katie Sullivan	Internal Verifier:	Dr Kate Williams
Assignment Title:	Component One: Essay Critically assess the relative contribution of individual psychological factors and group-based social processes in explaining prejudice.	Word count (or equivalent):	2,500 words
Submission deadline:	17/11/2026 By 23:59pm	Return date of provisional marks & written feedback:	05/01/2027
Submission method:	All written assessments, where practical and possible, must be submitted via Turnitin unless otherwise instructed by the Lecturer. (Please DO NOT put this assessment specification into Turnitin or it will match many similarities with other students' submissions.) Alternative submission method (if applicable): Late submission of the assessment will result in a late penalty mark: Work which is submitted up to 1 week late will be capped at 40% for the first attempt and will be awarded a mark of 0% for re-assessment. Late submission penalties may be lifted only if there is an approved extenuating circumstances claim. Work submitted more than 1 week late will be considered as a non-submission and will not be marked. The work may be considered as a submission for reassessment if offered by an Examining Board or if there is an approved extenuating circumstances claim.
Academic honesty / referencing:	Academic honesty is required. In the main body of your submission you must give credit to authors on whose research and ideas your work is based. Append to your submission a reference list that indicates the books, articles, etc. that you have used, cited or quoted in order to complete this assessment.
Work over the word limit:	To support fairness and good academic writing, each assessment has a set word limit. It's important that you stay within this limit. The word limit helps ensure: • You write clearly and concisely.

- All students complete the assessment on an equal basis.

If You Go Over the Word Limit
If your work exceeds the word limit, the following penalties will normally apply. These deductions cannot take your mark below the pass mark for the module.

Amount Over Limit	Penalty Applied
Up to 10% over	No penalty
10%–25% over	5 mark deduction or reduction to the capped mark (whichever is the smaller penalty)
26%–50% over	10 mark deduction or reduction to the capped mark (whichever is the smaller penalty)
Over 50%	Mark capped at the pass mark

Examples (Undergraduate):
- A mark of 44% would be reduced to the pass mark of 40% if the work is 10–25% over.
- A mark of 49% would be reduced by 5 marks to 44%.
- A mark of 47% at 25–50% over would be reduced to 40%.
- A mark of 55% at 25–50% over would be reduced by 10 marks to 45%.

If You Are Under the Word Limit
If your work is significantly under the word limit, you may lose marks because your submission may not contain enough detail to meet the learning outcomes.

Feedback
If a word-limit penalty is applied, this will be stated clearly in your feedback, along with the reason.

Module Learning Outcomes
(from module syllabus)

Upon the successful completion of this module, the student should be able to:

- Critically appraise competing theories in prejudice and discrimination research;
- Integrate findings from multiple perspectives in order to demonstrate critical understanding of current issues in prejudice and discrimination;
- Use evidence-based reasoning to critically consider the realism and ethics of prejudice and discrimination;
- Take responsibility for their own learning and skill development; including effective personal planning, self-reflection and project management skills.

Task Description

For this essay you are required to critically assess the relative contribution of individual psychological factors and group-based social processes in explaining prejudice. Specifically, you must assess the extent to which prejudice can be understood as arising from individual psychological factors, such as personality traits and individual differences, compared with group-based social and cognitive processes, such as social categorisation, social identity, stereotyping, and intergroup relations.

Your essay should examine how different theoretical perspectives attempt to explain prejudice and discrimination and critically evaluate the empirical evidence supporting these explanations. In doing so, you should consider the strengths, limitations, and practical implications of different approaches, rather than assuming a single perspective provides a complete explanation.

You may find the following structure useful:

Introduction

- Define key terms (e.g., prejudice, discrimination, stereotyping, etc.)
- Briefly introduce major perspectives to explain prejudice.
- Individual-level and group-level explanations.
- Outline the focus and argument of the essay.

Individual Psychological Factors

Discussion may include:

- Authoritarian Personality Theory.
- Right-Wing Authoritarianism.
- Social Dominance Orientation.
- Personality approaches to prejudice.

- Individual differences associated with prejudicial attitudes.
- Strengths and limitations of personality-based approaches.

Social and Group-Based Processes
Discussion may include:
- Social Identity Theory.
- Self-Categorisation Theory.
- Realistic Group Conflict Theory.
- Ingroup favouritism and outgroup derogation.
- Socialisation influences on prejudice.
- Strengths and limitations of social and intergroup approaches.

Cognitive Processes and Stereotyping
Discussion may include:
- Stereotype formation and activation.
- Categorisation processes.
- Automatic versus controlled cognition.
- Implicit and explicit prejudice.
- Contemporary approaches to prejudice measurement.
- The extent to which cognitive explanations support or challenge individual and social accounts.

Critical Evaluation and Integration
Discussion may include:
- Whether any single theory satisfactorily explains prejudice.
- Areas of convergence and divergence between perspectives.
- Methodological limitations within the literature.
- Cultural and historical influences on theories of prejudice.
- The usefulness of multi-factor explanations.
- Ethical implications arising from different theoretical positions.

Conclusion
- Draw together the main arguments presented throughout the essay.
- Directly answer the essay question.
- Evaluate the relative contribution of individual and social explanations.
- Consider practical implications for understanding and reducing prejudice and discrimination.
- Reflect on the extent to which contemporary evidence supports an integrated approach.

Important:
This is a critical evaluation, not a descriptive review of theories. You are expected to critically analyse, compare, and evaluate evidence from the empirical literature. Simply describing theories, concepts, or research findings will not be sufficient.

You are expected to engage with both classical and contemporary research literature. Some foundational theories were developed several decades ago and should be discussed where appropriate; however, these must be supplemented by contemporary empirical evidence.

Your final submission must adhere to APA formatting conventions for citing and referencing. You must also ensure your work is double line spaced, with font size 12 writing, and that the first line of each new paragraph is indented. There is no need for a title page. However, in line with university regulations, you must include an AI Acknowledgment Statement in a separate page at the beginning of your submission. To comply with the process of anonymous marking, do not include your name or student number on your submission. Please also consult the Guidance for Students in the Completion of Tasks and Generic Assessment Criteria on the pages below.

GUIDANCE FOR STUDENTS IN THE COMPLETION OF TASKS

NOTE: The guidance offered below is linked to the five generic assessment criteria overleaf.

1. Engagement with Literature Skills

Your work must be informed and supported by scholarly material that is relevant to and focused on the task(s) set; you should make use of scholarly reviews and primary sources, where appropriate (for example, refereed research articles and/or original materials appropriate to the discipline). You should provide evidence that you have accessed a wide range of sources, which may be academic, governmental and industrial; these sources may include academic journal articles, textbooks, current news articles, organisational documents, and websites. You should consider the credibility of your sources; academic journals are normally highly credible sources while websites require careful consideration/selection and should be used sparingly. Any sources you use should be current and up-to-date, mostly published within the last five years or so, though seminal/important works in the field may be older. You must provide evidence of your research/own reading throughout your work, using a suitable referencing system, including in-text citations in the main body of your work and a reference list at the end of your work.

Guidance specific to this assessment: The literature used to inform your essay should primarily consist of peer-reviewed journal articles and academic texts relating to prejudice and discrimination. You should demonstrate engagement with both foundational theories and contemporary research examining individual, cognitive, and social explanations of prejudice. As this is a Level 6 assessment, you are expected to move beyond core teaching materials and independently identify relevant empirical evidence. Approximately 25-35 academic references would normally be appropriate.

2. Knowledge and Understanding Skills

At level 6, you should be able to demonstrate coherent and detailed knowledge and a systematic understanding of the subject area, at least some of which is informed by the latest research and/or advanced scholarship within the discipline. You should be aware of the uncertainty, ambiguity and limits of knowledge. Your work must demonstrate the growing extent of your knowledge and systematic understanding of concepts and underlying principles associated with the subject area. Knowledge relates to the facts, information and skills you have acquired through your learning. You demonstrate your understanding by interpreting the meaning of the facts and information (knowledge). This means that you need to select and include in your work the concepts, techniques, models, theories, etc. appropriate to the task(s) set. You should be able to explain the theories, concepts, etc. meaningfully to show your understanding. Your mark/grade will also depend upon the extent to which you demonstrate your knowledge and understanding; ideally each should be complete and detailed, with comprehensive coverage.

Guidance specific to this assessment: You should demonstrate a detailed understanding of the major theoretical explanations of prejudice and discrimination, including individual difference approaches, social identity processes, stereotyping, social categorisation, and contemporary perspectives on implicit and explicit prejudice. Strong responses will show an understanding of how these perspectives relate to one another and contribute to our understanding of prejudice in contemporary society.

3. Cognitive and Intellectual Skills

You should be able to: critically evaluate evidence, arguments, assumptions, abstract concepts and data some of which are at the forefront of a discipline (and that may be incomplete) to devise and sustain arguments, to make judgements and/or solve problems; describe and comment upon particular aspects of current research, or equivalent advanced scholarship, in the discipline Your work must contain evidence of logical, analytical thinking, evaluation and synthesis. For example, to examine and break information down into parts, make inferences, compile, compare and contrast information. This means not just describing what! But also justifying: Why? How? When? Who? Where? At what cost? At all times, you must provide justification for your arguments and judgements. Evidence that you have reflected upon the ideas of others within the subject area is crucial to you providing a reasoned and informed debate within your work. Furthermore, you should provide evidence that you are able to make sound judgements and convincing arguments using data and concepts. Sound, valid conclusions are necessary and must be derived from the content of your work. Where relevant, alternative solutions and recommendations may be proposed.

Guidance specific to this assessment: This assessment requires critical evaluation rather than description. You should evaluate competing explanations of prejudice by examining the strength of the supporting evidence, considering alternative perspectives, and assessing the strengths and limitations of different theoretical approaches. Strong essays will synthesise evidence across multiple perspectives to develop a clear and coherent argument.

4. Practical Skills

At level 6, you should be able to apply the methods and techniques that you have learned to review, consolidate, extend and apply your knowledge and understanding, and to initiate and carry out projects. You will deploy accurately established techniques of analysis and enquiry relevant to the discipline, and apply them in complex and unpredictable contexts, to devise and sustain arguments and/or to solve problems. You should be able to frame appropriate questions to achieve a solution - or identify a range of solutions. You should be able to demonstrate how the subject-related concepts and ideas relate to real world situations and/or a particular context. How do they work in practice? You will deploy models, methods, techniques, and/or theories, in that context or circumstances, to assess current situations, perhaps to formulate plans or solutions to solve problems, or to create artefacts, some of which may be innovative and creative. This is likely to involve, for instance, the use of real world artefacts, examples and cases, the application of a model within an organisation and/or benchmarking one theory or organisation against others based on stated criteria. You should show awareness of the limitations of concepts and theories when applied in particular contexts.

Guidance specific to this assessment: You should demonstrate the ability to apply theoretical and empirical knowledge to real-world examples of prejudice and discrimination. Strong responses will show how psychological theories can help explain contemporary forms of prejudice while recognising the limitations of applying research findings to complex social issues.

5. Transferable Skills for Life and Professional Practice

Your work must provide evidence of the qualities and transferable skills necessary for graduate-level employment requiring the exercise of initiative and personal responsibility and decision-making in complex and unpredictable circumstances. This includes demonstrating: the learning ability for professional development to advance existing skills and acquire new competences of a professional nature that will enable you to assume significant responsibility within organisations; that you can initiate and complete tasks and procedures, whether individually and/or collaboratively; that you can use appropriate media to effectively communicate information, arguments and analysis in a variety of forms to specialist and non-specialist audiences; fluency of expression; clarity and effectiveness in presentation and organisation. Work should be coherent and well-structured in presentation and organisation.

Guidance specific to this assessment: Completion of work in accordance with programme and UWTSD guidelines for the submission of assessments as relevant, including adherence to academic misconduct regulations, inclusion of AI use acknowledgment statement, and word count (or equivalent) policy.
Your essay should be professionally written, logically structured, and clearly communicated. Academic writing should be concise, objective, and evidence-based. All arguments should be supported through appropriate citation of the literature and referenced according to APA conventions.
The essay should comprise of an introductory section setting out the key issues to be addressed; a body of discussion, evidence, and explanation; and a thorough conclusion that directly addresses the essay title.

STUDENT FEEDBACK FORM

This section details the extent to which the assessment criteria are demonstrated by you, which in turn determines your mark. The marks available for each category of skill are shown. Lecturers will use the space provided to comment on the achievement of the task(s), including those areas in which you have performed well and areas that would benefit from development/improvement.

GENERIC ASSESSMENT CRITERIA

Level 6
In accordance with the Framework for Higher Education Qualifications, at the end of Level 6 students should have coherent and detailed knowledge and a systematic understanding of their subject area, at least some of which is informed by the latest research and/or advanced scholarship within the discipline. They will be able to accurately deploy established techniques of analysis and enquiry within a discipline, using their conceptual understanding to devise and sustain arguments and/or to solve problems. They should be aware of the uncertainty, ambiguity and limits of knowledge. They should be able to critically evaluate evidence, arguments, assumptions, abstract concepts and data (that may be incomplete), to make judgements, and to frame appropriate questions to achieve a solution - or identify a range of solutions. They will apply the methods and techniques that they have learned to review, consolidate, extend and apply their knowledge and understanding, and to initiate and carry out projects. They will have the ability to manage their own learning, and to make use of scholarly reviews and primary sources (for example, refereed research articles and/or original materials appropriate to the discipline). They will demonstrate the qualities and transferable skills necessary for employment requiring: the exercise of initiative and personal responsibility; decision-making in complex and unpredictable contexts; the learning ability needed to undertake appropriate further training of a professional or equivalent nature.
