Bibliography

Bone, M., Croft, B., Dawson, D., Fitzpatrick, A., Holbrook, N., Hosfield, R., Pollard, J., Rippon, S. and Webster, C. (2021) Research Agenda. Available at: https://researchframeworks.org/swarf/a-research-agenda-for-archaeology-in-south-west-england/ (Accessed 17 January 2024)

Davies, P. (2008) Snails: Archaeology and Landscape Change. Oxford: Oxbow Books.

De Vareilles, A., Woodbridge, J., Pelling, R., Fyfe, R., Smith, D., Campbell, G., Smith, W., Carruthers, W., Adams, S., Le Hégarat, K. and Allot, L. (2023) The development of arable cultivation in the south-east of England and its relationship with vegetation cover: A honeymoon period for biodiversity?. Plymouth Electronic Archive and Research Library. Plymouth: SAGE Publications.

Dickson, C. A. (1990) 'Experimental processing and cooking of emmer and spelt wheats and the Roman army diet', in Robinson, D. (ed) Experimentation and Reconstruction in Environmental Archaeology, pp. 33-40.

Historic England (2018) Research Frameworks. Available at: https://historicengland.org.uk/research/support-and-collaboration/research-frameworks-typologies/research-frameworks/ (Accessed: 14 January 2024).

Holguin, A., Charles, M., Mithen, S. and Schulting, R. (2022) 'In a nutshell: Using structural and chemical changes to establish the charring conditions of archaeological hazelnut shells', Journal of Archaeological Science 144 (August). Available at: https://doi.org/10.1016/j.jas.2022.105623

Reed, K., Sabljić, S., Šoštarić, R. and Essert, S. (2019) 'Grains from ear to ear: the morphology of spelt and free-threshing wheat from Roman Mursa (Osijek), Croatia', Vegetation History and Archaeobotany 28, pp. 623-634. Available at:

https://doi.org/10.1007/s00334-019-00719-4