Food Safety Act 1990

In short, businesses must ensure food does not compromise a person's health, and that it is of the nature, substance or quality demanded by the purchaser's prerogative. Food businesses must also make sure they don't falsely describe or present food.

General Food Law

To place safe food on the market food businesses must ensure:

- traceability of food
- appropriate presentation of food
- suitable food information is provided
- prompt withdrawal or recall of unsafe food placed on the market
- food and feed imported into, and exported from, Great Britain (GB) shall comply with food law.

(European Commission, n.d.)
