Aims

To allow students to critically explore theoretical concepts relating to disability, health and social care and wellbeing in contemporary society.

Learning Outcomes

Critically engage with the multiple models of disability and their relation to inclusive practice in contemporary society;

Undertake a comparative analysis of different paradigms of health and social care provision;

Critically evaluate the efficacy of current health and social care policy with regard to supporting well-being.

Indicative Content

An exploration of the different models of disability (including but not exclusively the medical, social, tragedy and empowerment models) and what each model means for service users.

An overview of paradigms of health and social care, including their ideological or theoretical basis.

An exploration of the effects of current health and social care policy on service users.

A discourse on the nature of well-being and its interpretation by policy makers in contemporary society.

A review of the policy and practice framework across services and within the evolving legislative framework, such as the Equality Act (2010).

Assignment 2 – Unpacked

- Health and Wellbeing are certainly 'buzzwords' within the 21st century, however, they are two different things.
- For this assignment, you are going to consider the differences between health and wellbeing, utilising research to support as evidence.

Assignment 2 – Unpacked

Consider health and wellbeing in terms of measurements:

- How do we measure our health?
 - Measures of health status, quality of life and health care | Health Knowledge
- How do we measure our wellbeing?
 - What is well-being, how can we measure it and how can we support people to improve it? | Mental Health Foundation
