

APPLICATION FOR ETHICAL APPROVAL

In order for research to result in benefit and minimise risk of harm, it must be conducted ethically. A researcher may not be covered by the University's insurance if ethical approval has not been obtained prior to commencement.

The University follows the OECD Frascati manual definition of research activity: "creative work undertaken on a systematic basis in order to increase the stock of knowledge, including knowledge of man, culture and society, and the use of this stock of knowledge to devise new applications". As such this covers activities undertaken by members of staff, postgraduate research students, and both taught postgraduate and undergraduate students working on dissertations/projects.

The individual undertaking the research activity is known as the "principal researcher".

Ethical approval is not required for routine audits, performance reviews, quality assurance studies, testing within normal educational requirements, and literary or artistic criticism.

Please read the notes for guidance before completing ALL sections of the form.

This form must be completed and approved prior to undertaking any research activity. Please see Checklist for details of process for different categories of application.

SECTION E: Details of Research Activity

1	Indicative title:	Investigating Bluetooth and Beacon Technology to aid University building tours
2	Proposed start date:	May 2022	Proposed end date:	September 2022
3	Introduction to the Research (maximum 300 words) Ensure that you write for a Non-Specialist Audience when outlining your response to the three points below: • Purpose of Research Activity • Proposed Research Question • Aims of Research Activity • Objectives of Research Activity Demonstrate, briefly, how Existing Research has informed the proposed activity and explain • What the research activity will add to the body of knowledge • How it addresses an area of importance.
4	Purpose of Research Activity New students to any University feel anxious about starting in a brand-new establishment which they are not familiar with. The research aims to look at how Bluetooth and GIS can be used to implement a self-guided tour app as well as look at the type of technologies that are typically used for this type of application. The organisation being investigated is the University of Wales Trinity Saint David (UWTSD). UWTSD operates many campuses across Wales and England. As a University, it has thousands of students within them many of which are new students to the campus. Inductions are usually carried out within the first few weeks of the students being at the University with tours typically conducted however, some students may want to walk around the building outside of induction time but still require some assistance to orienteer themselves with the campus. The UWTSD self-guided tour app allows students to orienteer themselves with the campus building and give the information required, such as opening times, and provides locational information of where they currently are within the building as well as information about the specific room or department, they are near. This would assist with students finding their way around the campus independently so then, as they become more familiar with their surroundings using the app, they can then walk around the campus by themselves without the app. By the end of the project, it is expected that the user will be able to walk around the UWTSD IQ building with a web application on their mobile device, once they reach a particular Bluetooth beacon the app will inform them where they are and inform them whether they are nearby any specialised rooms or labs. If they are located at a particular room of interest, such as Student Services, it will inform the user of the type of support that can be provided by the University. (this box should expand as you type)
5	Research Question

	How can Bluetooth and Beacon Technology be used to aid University building tours? (this box should expand as you type)
6	Aims of Research Activity The aim of the project is to build a University tour web application for the UWTSD IQ building which utilises GIS and Bluetooth to provide the user with locational information. (this box should expand as you type)
7	Objectives of Research Activity 1. To research the use of GID and Bluetooth for providing locational information. 2. To research two similar apps to see how they work as well as the technology that is used for the apps to work and analyse the user interface. 3. To choose a rout on the ground floor of the IQ building at UWTSD and pick three locations on the ground floor of the IQ building with basic dimensions of the rooms to be collected. 4. To find three suitable beacons and any supplementary equipment needed. 5. Build the application using C# and collect user feedback. (this box should expand as you type)
8	Proposed methods (maximum 600 words) Provide a brief summary of all the methods that may be used in the research activity, making it clear what specific techniques may be used. If methods other than those listed in this section are deemed appropriate later, additional ethical approval for those methods will be needed.
9	Two similar applications to the project would be tested to see how they work as well as the technology that is used for the apps to work and analyse the user interface To collect the requirements of the application, testing would be performed on the Swansea University tour application. Once this testing has been done, a questionnaire would be sent out to determine what is good and bad about an existing self-guided tour app from Swansea University and to see what features could be implemented UWTSD self-guided tour app. The Student Hwb at UWTSD would be interviewed to collect data on things such as what students ask whilst attending an open day at the university. It is hoped that on open days, a student can go by a particular lab and have a rundown of what is being taught in that room. In the library, the app informs the user of the opening times. Student Services would also be interviewed and be questions on what students with disabilities what the most difficult thing for theme is presently at the University. For those students who are wheelchair bound, what is lift access like and are they accessible to those students with disabilities. Once the final app has been implemented, questionnaires would be sent out to potential users before and after development to see their responses. The application would be developed using the C# programming language on Visual Studio. Once the application has been fully implemented, further tests would be performed, by participants, that would make sure that the application works properly and that the objectives have been met. Application Process

All staff research projects and all research students must submit the Ethical Approval Form to the University Research Ethics Committee via the Academic Office (pgresearch@uwtsd.ac.uk). Staff research directly in relation to personal study for taught undergraduate or Masters programmes should be submitted via the Institute procedures explained below.

Taught masters and taught undergraduate research Ethical Approval Forms are considered within Institutes. Institutes will provide details of the specific processes for this. Where the Ethical issues within any single ethical application are of particular concern the Institute will refer these to the University Research Ethics Committee. Any student activity that involves the collection of primary data needs to undergo Ethical approval, this includes assignment work as well as dissertations.
