

JW

Infoskills Moo... / Refere... / Referencing - Th...

Referencing - The Basics

✓ Done

Referencing is an essential skill to learn during your academic studies. Being able to accurately recognise the elements of a reference will help you identify key sources during your research, in addition to helping you reference them correctly in your assignments.

Before you begin to create your references, it is important to understand why and when we reference.

The aim of this unit is to provide you with the basic principles to support your learning and understanding of referencing and help you identify the different types of