

William Ben Worthington 1900221

Time went on, gentlemen, I came home unexpectedly from the field after dinner the child began crying in a discontented way the hand-maid was annoying it deliberately so that it would do this, for the man was within. I learnt all later. I ordered my wife to depart and give the child her breast in order to stop it crying. At first she was not willing as if happy at seeing me in my presence for some time. Because I was in a state of anger I ordered her to go, 'So ~~that~~ that you' she said 'can have a go at the little maid here. Once before, when drunk, you pulled her about'.

Lysias 1.11-12. (section A).

Most certainly I am ~~am~~ annoyed, counsellor, that on account of these actions/deeds spoken having forced against me towards you on my behalf I shaming... because when Σίμων into/towards/against herself forcing having brought before, but not ?ing I having set out the detail ~~to put~~ to you
[achieving the whole]

Lysias 'Against Simon' (Section B).