

“Welsh independence” an article on the politics.co.uk website, is what I have identified as my primary source for my upcoming essay. I have decided to use this as my primary source as it is an overview of the political debate, which is Welsh independence, covering the history, the support, and the opposing argument. As this primary source covers a variety of topics in Welsh Independence, it is extremely useful and much easier to find the relevant information and reference it all. The article varies from when Wales was last an independent nation in 1282, to the growing interest in Welsh independence within the current generation and throughout the global pandemic. At the end of the article, there are a range of statistics to support the arguments, and the sources which I could use myself in my essay or investigate the source itself and use their information. There is also a small section in the article dedicated to quotes that support the Welsh nationalist's dream, which I could then take and put my own interpretations into the quotes. Lastly, the article mentions the opposing argument to Welsh Independence and why it might not work.

Politics.co.uk. (n.d.). Welsh Independence - All you need to know. [online] Available at:

<https://www.politics.co.uk/reference/welsh-independence/>.