

Student Name:	Yavor Tanev
Student Number:	2030046
Module No:	LCBB4002
Module Title:	Community Engagement
Lecturer:	Faizu Edu

LCCB4002 Community Engagement Assessment 2

Introduction

The purpose of this study will be to examine the committee participation efforts that have been implemented in the United Kingdom's local region over the past several years. In this particular case, attention will be paid to the process of developing a reflecting item. With the completion of this reflection essay, I expect to have gained a better understanding and assessment of some of the significant ways communities may be involved in the United Kingdom. All of the strategies utilized to engage in community contact will be examined, allowing us to understand which methods were the weakest and which methods were the most necessary to use. This will enable us to determine the importance of community participation strategies in addressing the social problem.

While implementing community engagement approaches, this reflective research will allow us to examine the procedures that were utilized to develop good communication and the relevance of stakeholders who were involved. This study was conducted to encompass the whole set of participants and shareholders interested in community participation initiatives on a local level as a method of influencing personal development. This personal growth may be attained by focusing on self-awareness and recognizing the sense of community among the people and their recognition of their capabilities.

Discussion

Community involvement through participation in events and service to the community are two essential methods to become more actively involved in your community. Participating in my community is vital to the growth and progress of the place in which I live. Getting involved is easy. Our culture has many young people who desperately need the guidance provided by other people's decisions. This is quite crucial (Pandey, 2018). Everyone in society benefits from being active because it ensures that everyone will work together to solve difficulties to achieve success. Taking an active role in improving my community raises several concerns, which I will address in this article.

It is crucial to be culturally literate in any society, but it is much more necessary in a country with a varied population. Individuals from various cultural backgrounds can better understand and support one another when they are culturally relevant. Therefore, even though more data must be included, more material must be displayed, and it must be done correctly.

Having the ability to be a good leader is advantageous to everyone involved. Everyone in the community must grow and develop in the same way that a manager does within the context of everyday life (Ashworth et al., 2021). I think local leaders should possess several essential characteristics, the most significant of which should be connected to people, management, and cultural sensitivity. To be a successful leader, you must demonstrate that you possess various leadership abilities and characteristics.

I may also be able to put what I have learned to good use to become a better person in the future. As a result of my education, I have recognized that information is a potent instrument. When it comes to intercultural competency, the more familiar you are with it, the easier it will be for me to grasp their ethnicity and vice versa. Getting involved in your community cannot be overstated regarding its relevance in any community. One of the most important lessons I have taken away from the program is that being actively engaged in society entails more than just volunteering at a homeless shelter or participating in a food drive once or twice a year. Maintaining perseverance while also being aware of the current obstacles inside the organization is critical to attaining long-term business success.

Each of us brings something unique to the table to contribute to the collective wisdom. It is only through collaborative efforts that meaningful progress can be realized; information must be translated into action to be effective. Through my training and development, I have discovered that there is always an opportunity for improvement and advancement. The knowledge and skills I will get from a single program will not be sufficient to prepare me for future community engagement and leadership roles. It has made me more conscious of the adjustments I need to make and a more conscious person, even if I was not prepared for it to happen (Nelson, 2019). Having completed this course, I have gained a fresh perspective on the events of the globe and have obtained the ability to characterize my hometown and the people that live there more accurately. As a result of participating in this program, I have gained a plethora of knowledge that I want to use in my everyday life to my advantage.

I have learned that local educational intervention is crucial for the children in the area to ensure that they receive a substantial benefit from the program. Throughout this research, I have been able to identify a variety of different approaches to executing this specific community participation program (Barry et al., 2018). To ensure that children can go above and beyond their level of self-development and are prepared to respond to the concerns of others by participating in local services, it is necessary to hold them accountable for their activities. This is something I can comprehend. I was surprised to learn that different social programs employ various methods for assessing the scale of their influence within a community and the diversity of its members. For this effort, I have communicated with all of the principal actors and stakeholders so that even the most basic of services, such as registering people's names and ensuring that they have access to health care, can serve as a starting point for the process of community education to take place. This task would have been impossible to complete without the participation of all necessary shareholders and the establishment of effective communication among the team members, who were also drawn from the local community because these individuals are familiar with the problems that exist in the neighborhood.

Not all residents of the area had equal access to express their thoughts. Having everyone listen to them with complete respect and care was discovered during the early phases of the community engagement program launch. It was not until the creation of the community participation program fell short of expectations that I realized there was an issue. In a subsequent meeting with all of the team members, it was determined that each individual would have equal access to and respect for their ideas. Thus, the fundamental purpose of this specific community participation strategy may be achieved, and the social problem may be addressed to the greatest extent possible.

For me, it was evident that community engagement attempts to incorporate the entire community to produce long-term and stable outcomes and establish a positive connection with the students in the surrounding community. There are several advantages to providing financial and material assistance to the organization, as demonstrated by individuals who have demonstrated an exceptional level of interest and attention to community participation in education. Apart from the obligations in terms of money and materials, it may also include providing labor providers or integrating all three aspects. As a result of this intelligence, I have enhanced my identification by participating in the appropriate community program, which has helped me address one of the most severe challenges in our society. My colleagues and I considered the topic of education since it was recognized as one of the most delicate problems to bring up in the local community of the United Kingdom.

Throughout the development of this area, our team's primary focus was on developing a community education system that would open up educational possibilities in the United Kingdom's local government (Mitchell et al., 2021). In addition, building a source of support for the community engagement program has given me a greater understanding of how to involve everyone to increase the town's overall worth, which has been beneficial.

During building the community engagement program, I realized how critical it is to engage the community in developing actual improvements. This enables the communities and me to voice our worries and acknowledge the significant replies while also reducing the problem that harms them in the long run (Borgi et al., 2020). In addition, this has enabled me to make a positive difference in the social norms of my area a result of my efforts.

It is also vital to ensure that all stakeholders are engaged, that information is shared, and that consultation occurs at all levels, which is why I have learned so much about them via my engagement in the community. An open channel of communication is being built among all parties concerned, allowing them to address the most critical issues and detect possible problems before they become a problem. I am well aware of the fact that there was a communication breakdown amongst the several stakeholders throughout the program's initial development. Having worked with stakeholders in the United Kingdom for a few months, I have realized that their participation in the community-based program is vital since it gives valuable information about their impressions of progress and obstacles (Marsh et al., 2021). The administration, academic members, and support personnel are the three primary stakeholders in this community involvement program. Additionally, students and communities that contain individuals who have specialized in a particular area of interest are important stakeholders to consider when developing a strategy.

In developing this community program, I have collaborated with members of the community to incorporate some effective research methods. First and foremost, we have attempted to understand the significance of social concern in my community. As a result, all of the program's participants were invited to participate in a discussion about the design and execution of the project. The participation of partners has also been an essential component of this process. The study was carried out in this manner, with processes such as data collection, analysis, and presentation of the report completed at the end of the study period. In addition, I have learned about a new concept related to community mapping that will help me design a successful program for community participation in the future. This step in the community mapping process is where the social problem that needs to be addressed and the goal that needs to be achieved are discussed regularly among those involved in it, known as pre-mapping. The mapping phase of the process is the next step. A resource inventory is completed, and mapping software collects and analyzes data (Ogunrin, 2019). Making a plan of action after reaching an agreement and disseminating it are all aspects of the third step.

We have used social media to spread the word about our efforts to involve the community, even developing the program itself. As part of this process, the social media platform has been used to ask questions, conduct contacts, upload weekly activities, specify our community members, conduct live sessions, solicit feedback, and create user-generated content in order to ensure that the social concern can achieve the best possible results on social media platforms, among other things. Through the education strategies and techniques employed by a community engagement program, I believe that one of the most effective ways to educate employees about the history of many communities and the discipline required to diversify business conditions is through participation in the program. The effectiveness of this community involvement program may have been outstripped even by the attention given to training exercises offered to students for improving their interpersonal skills and providing them with relevant resources.

Conclusion

It has been determined from the previous discussion that I have been able to improve my abilities as part of a community engagement program throughout the process of developing the community engagement program. In addition, taking part in a significant community involvement initiative in my home country's local region provided me with valuable information, which I would not have learned about had I not taken part. Therefore, I have attempted to communicate my general understanding of the situation in light of this.

References

- ASHWORTH, H. C., DADA, S., BUGGY, C. & LEES, S. 2021. The importance of developing rigorous social science methods for community engagement and behavior change during outbreak response. Disaster medicine and public health preparedness, 15, 685-690.
- BARRY, M. M., CLARKE, A. M., MORREALE, S. E. & FIELD, C. A. 2018. A review of the evidence on the effects of community-based programs on young people's social and emotional skills development. Adolescent Research Review, 3, 13-27.
- BORGI, M., COLLACCHI, B., CORREALE, C., MARCOLIN, M., TOMASIN, P., GRIZZO, A., ORLICH, R. & CIRULLI, F. 2020. Social farming as an innovative approach to promote mental health, social inclusion and community engagement. Annali dell'Istituto Superiore di Sanità, 56, 206-214.
- MARSH, E. E., KAPPELMAN, M. D., KOST, R. G., MUDD-MARTIN, G., SHANNON, J., STARK, L. A. & CARRASQUILLO, O. 2021. Community engagement during COVID: A field report from seven CTSAs. Journal of clinical and translational science, 5.
- MITCHELL, J., COOKE, P., AHORLU, C., ARJYAL, A., BARAL, S., CARTER, L., DASGUPTA, R., FIEROZE, F., FONSECA-BRAGA, M. & HUQUE, R. 2021. Community engagement: The key to tackling Antimicrobial Resistance (AMR) across a One Health context? Global Public Health, 1-18.
- NELSON, E. 2019. A resource guide for community engagement and involvement in global health research.
- OGUNRIN, O. 2019. Informed Consent and Community Engagement in Genomic Research, The University of Liverpool (United Kingdom).

PANDEY, C. L. 2018. Making communities disaster resilient: Challenges and prospects for community engagement in Nepal. Disaster Prevention and Management: An International Journal.