ARCHITECTURE STUDIO 1A
TASK 2 WINDOW PART ONE

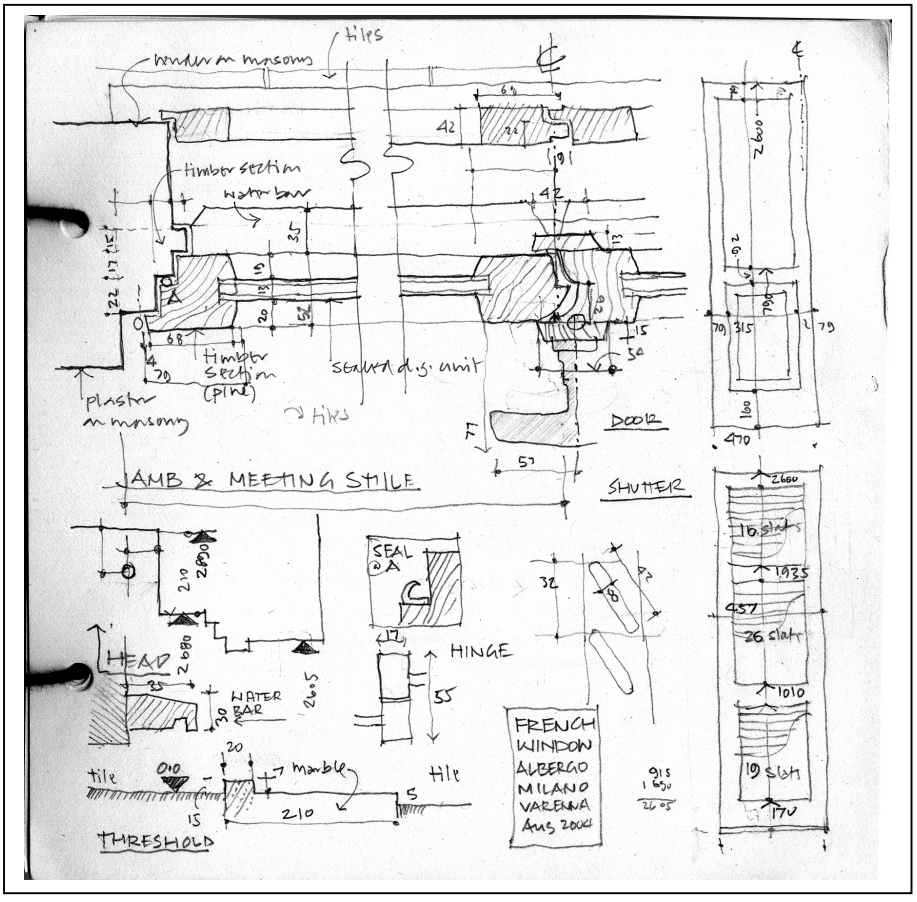
Windows are everywhere. They are among the most familiar pieces of our environment. At first sight they are very simple things – just glazed holes in walls to let in light. But on closer investigation they are rather subtle and complex. A well-placed carefully designed window can transform a dull room into a magical place.

For this exercise you are asked to make a survey drawing of a window of your choice in your logbook using a "double page spread". You should make dimensioned sketches of the key features of the window

- Plan showing the window and the ADJOINING/neighbouring wall
- Vertical section show in head, cill and all intermediate parts
- Internal elevation showing the immediate surroundings
- Key details – eg hinges & catches



Ian Standen October 2017