

Streets Ahead Photography Competition

Come and join us for the first Streets Ahead Photography Competition. Streets Ahead Children’s Centre Association (SACCA) are a Rwandan based charity whose primary focus is to provide food, shelter, and a helping hand for the children of Rwanda who need it most.

By pairing up with FOAM Magazine, as well as Harambee Wales, we are able to give you, your friends, and your family the opportunity to be published in FOAM, and win a prize up to £1,000

The goal is to promote cultural awareness to photographers of all abilities and backgrounds, while making money to support SACCA.

The scope of the competition is to submit a photograph of your own work that displays and highlights culture you see around you, wherever you may be in the world.

If you would like to enter the competition, a link can be found below.

The competition will run from the 1st August 2018 until 1st November 2018, before being judged in time for the winning three photographs to be published in the Spring 2019 edition of FOAM magazine. The top three winners will also receive cash prizes—£1,000 (1st), £500 (2nd), £250 (3rd).

In addition to this the top 100 photographs will be published in an online portfolio on the FOAM website, meaning your photograph will gain a global audience.

The competition will be judged on the entrants ability to capture the culture around them, whether they have been a member of this culture their entire lives, or are experiencing it from the outside as a newcomer. We want you to show us a little part of what defines us as humans. This is open to the interpretation and imagination of yourself, however extra consideration will obviously go towards creativity and enthusiasm. It is also recommended that entrants to the competition leave a small 250 word explanation of their photograph and what is happening.

This competition will be donation based, with a suggested donation of £3-£5 per entry. Further details on website link:
