PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT PLAN

Self-Evaluation:

Strength

- Autodidactic
- Patient
- Open to New Ideas

Weaknesses

- Perfectionist
- Learning things just for a hobby
- Hard to decide

A professional development plan (PDP) serves as a concise roadmap, outlining career objectives, breaking them into manageable steps, and enabling progress tracking throughout the journey.[1]

Mastering the art of goal setting is a profoundly influential skill as it empowers you to accomplish diverse objectives and work efficiently towards any desired outcome.[3]

SMART goals are not the same as regular goals. they are stronger and more detailed.[4]

Goals	Skills needed	To be worked on	Actions should be taken
Learn about Cyber Security	System operation, Coding, Cloud Security	Coding, Cloud Security	Effective time management to find good sources and read/learn about them. Search to find an online course to learn the basics. Taking modules about it
Web design and development	Web design application, HTML, JavaScript	Learn about HTML, JavaScript	Having modules at university, books, and other sources such as the web, or online courses
