Introduction

In this presentation we will be analysing the risk factors and safeguarding of the family from the given Case Study. In addition, we will be discussing the relevant policies, legislations and the importance of a multiagency and partnership approaches. Lastly this presentation will be summarised with a conclusion.

The staff member who deals with housing problems at Neighboring Services was the one who made the initial referral to help Family D.

The family's financial needs can only be satisfied by receiving some form of income support. They have just moved into a brand-new house, which means it must be decorated.

As a result of the in-depth investigation and evaluation that will be carried out, a determination will be made regarding the overall health and happiness of the family, as well as some recommendations regarding how this might be improved.

Nazreen Akhtar

Risk Factors

Issues related to domestic violence

- Mother and child's mental and physical health jeopardized.
- The emotional and mental toll that domestic violence might take on a whole household.

Shelter requirements

- Feelings of insecurity and instability may be exacerbated by living conditions that are not secure and stable.
- The repeated moves caused disruptions in the children schooling and social lives.

Budget in general

- Financial hardship and inability to meet basic necessities may result from reliance on supplemental income.
- The mother's tension and concern over providing for her family has increased.

The youngest son's disabilities

- Extra help is needed because of the child's special circumstances.
- Possible effects on the kid's future success in school, relationships, and maturation

Vulnerability

- The children in the house are vulnerable due to the housing needs and domestic violence acts in household.
- The mother is also vulnerable as she is facing problems with finances and being domestically violated by her partner.

Safeguarding

- Safeguarding is protecting people's health's, human rights and wellbeing. It allows people to live free from harm neglect and abuse, its fundamental to high quality health and social care (safeguarding people, 2023).
- Safeguarding can help the family by providing a safe place to them to maintain therapy and counselling sessions this can identify their potential risks and appropriate actions that should take place.
- The 7 Rs recognise, respond, report, record, renotify, reflect and review

Analysis of Mother

- The situations the Mother contains is domestic violence between herself and her non-residential partner, housing needs and general finance issues.
- This can impact her family as it can disturb her children's mental health as the violence creates an unsafe environment due to the negative atmosphere.
- The intervention agencies that will be suitable for this situation will be couple counselling and Women's Aid. Couple counselling is a type of therapy that focuses on helping people improve their domestic relationships, this is done by working on communication and resolving conflicts (Bernard, 2023). This can better the couple's relationships and reduce the violence.

Analysis of Mother

- Housing needs, this may be a situation as it will cost to improve the house which can impact the mothers finance situation negatively. General finance issues can be a situation for the mother as it will impact her to get a job to earn money in order to resolve the issue. This can impact the family as it can lead them to poverty. The local council agency and social services can help with this situation as they can repair the house and provide additional finances for the Mother.
- Her youngest son also is disabled which increases her responsibilities as a mother. This will impact her and her family as they will all need to be more cautious with the son. The mother also has four children so she has a higher responsibility for them the agency that can help with this situation is Woman's Aid. This is a national charity that work with women with children that also experience abuse (Woman's Aid, 2023). This can be beneficial for the Mother in the case study as she contains a violent partner. The agency can provide support with the tools that will help her know what to do with the situation.

Analysis of Non-Resident Partner

- The Non-resident partner domestically violent towards the Mother. He isn't a resident in the household, which suggest he not supposed to live there. The impact of this partner is that he is disturbing the Mothers and children's mental health. This partner should be reported to the housing agencies as he isn't a permeant resident
- The agency that will be considered is domestic violence agency this is an agency dedicated to helping people within violent situations and domestic abuse (NCDV, 2023)
- He should attend counselling or anger management programs for behavioural issues. Furthermore, he should stablsh clear boundaries and expectations for respectful interactions and encourage taking responsibility and working towards positive change. If his behaviour changes in the process, he will be able to rejoin the family.

Analysis of Son – (Primary School Age)

- The youngest son has a disability, this is an inability to perform an activity within the normal human range. This situation can impact himself and other members of his family, this is because it can affect his communications between them.
- The agencies that he will need to improve the situation is the Disability support services, social services and child welfare services. The agencies can support him as they can provide assistance with his disability and resources that can improve his daily life.
- Additional with the situation between the Mother and partner, it can affect the child's mental health, social serves will be able to stop the situation and provide support with his mental health.
- The equality Act 2010 policy supports this child as it states that a disabled children has rights to be in education and with the agencies provided the son will be able to visit the primary school without difficulties.

Son – (Working Age)

- Since the son is at working age, he would be assisting the mother with the housing needs and general finance issues, this can prevent the amount of responsibility the mothers holds and can quicker the process of being financial stainable. In addition, the son has come back from care to stay with the family which suggests that it's a positive aspect for the family.
- The agencies that will help the son is Job centre as they can provide the son with a suitable job that can help the families financial situation (Job Centre, 2023).
- The community family support programme support families as they make life changing decision to improve their lives . The agency can help him with family support that tackle the challenges in the household. Additionally, they can support him creating a CV and preparations for job interviews (Nidirect, 2023).

Current Relevant Policies

Policies	Definition	Case Study
Human Rights Act 1998	The policy ensures that individuals have access to fundamental rights and freedoms (Equality and Human Rights, 2023).	This policy will provide protection to the family as they are vulnerable, and one child is disabled. This law will make sure that the family are safe from the domestic violence from the partner.
Care Act 2014	The care act policy was Introduced by the UK government to reform the social care system, it aims to improve the quality of care that is provided to vulnerable people ensuring they are respected (DeltaNet, 2022).	This act will also help the family from protect them from the mental abuse created by the violence in the household and can provide care to the children which can improve their quality of life.
Equality Act 2010	This act protects issues including age, disability, gender reassignment, marriage and civil, partnership, pregnancy and maternity, race, religion, sex and sexual orientation (Participation, 2023).	This act will support the family as the family contains a disabled child which the act can support by providing him with education opportunities and access to education. The act can also provide support to the mother by recovering from the violence that she has experience by having access to support services like healthcare and they can also help with housing needs.
United Nation Convention on the rights of the child	This policy understands children's, economic, social, civil, political and culture rights. (UNICEF, 2023) . According to Article 2 from (UNICEF, 2023) the policy applies to every child without discrimination despite their language sex, race or family background etc.	This policy will help the given family as the disabled child and violently domesticated mother won't be discriminated from having access to care to better their situations.
The Children and Social Work Act	This act aims to improve the welfare of children and young people with vulnerabilities. It also strengthens the social work profession and ensures that social workers contain the skills and knowledge needs to create an impact (Social Work England, 2023).	This act can help the family as they can provide personal advisers that can help the children and mother from experiencing the domestic violence and can h=give access to resources that will improve their education, employment and housing opportunities.

Importance of a Multiagency Partnership Approach

Social Services	Provide support and interventions for domestic violence, housing needs, and finances
Housing Agencies	Assist in finding suitable, safe, and stable housing options for the family
Domestic Violence Support Organizations	Offer counselling, safety planning, and resources for individuals experiencing DV
Financial Advisors	Provide guidance on budgeting, financial management, and accessing additional support
Disability Support Services	Address specific needs of the youngest son with disabilities
Mental Health Professionals	Offer counseling and therapy services for emotional and psychological well-being
Child Welfare Services	Collaborate on care and well-being of the son in care, ensure appropriate support
Education Services	Address educational disruptions and provide necessary accommodations
Community Support Programs	Offer additional resources and programs for families facing multiple challenges
Legal Services	Provide guidance and support related to legal rights and navigating the legal system

Contingency Plan

- Gather information about the family's history, wants, and worries through in-depth interviews with individual members.
- Pay a visit to the residence in question and look for any obvious safety or housing problems.
- Gather more information by working with educators, medical professionals, and social workers.
- Gather detailed information using standardized evaluation methods for domestic violence, housing requirements, financial circumstances, and impairments.
- Learn more about the family's income, expenditures, and resources through a financial evaluation.
- Screenings and mental health exams can help determine how much of an effect domestic abuse has on family members.
- Discuss the children's academic accomplishments, any special needs they may have, and any necessary modifications with their school.
- Contact a disability support service to discuss your youngest son's unique situation and their recommendations for how to help him best. If you're concerned about the safety of your home or the potential harm that domestic violence might do, you might want to undertake a risk assessment.
- Gather several points of view by holding case conferences and conducting collaborative assessments with the participating specialists.
- Additionally, we can contact the NSPCC as they help children and adults that have experience any type of neglect and abuse.

Conclusion

In conclusion this presentation has outlined the situations and their impacts of all the people in the case study, Mother, non-resident partner, the disabled son, two daughters and the working age son. Furthermore, we have provided possible agencies that can help each individual with the barriers they have and analysed the relevant policies that fit each situation. Additionally, we have stated the risk factors and safeguarding concerns in the family and explained the approach towards them. Finally, we have created a contingency plan, which is a back-up plan that can solve the situations if the first approaches don't go so well.
