| Education for sustainable development is the process of equipping students with the knowledge and understanding, skills and attributes needed to work and live in a way that safeguards environmental, social and economic wellbeing, both in the present and for future generations.This module aims to develop the understanding and ability to manage projects within the workplace, including the knowledge and understanding of project management tools and techniques, with regard to sustainability issues within the context of the workplace. Sustainability in project management is about balancing or harmonizing social, environmental and economic interests in a project.Students will also be encouraged to actively implement or contribute to changes that promote sustainable development within the scope of their own learning experience and study environment and effectively engage with real-life problems relevant to sustainable development. |     |

ASSESSMENT

As a helpful approximate guideline, an indicative word count of about 4,000 -5000 words would be appropriate.

Choose any specific case study (either a project with your current employers or if not currently working any project of your choice) and:

- 1) Provide a critical assessment of the usefulness of project management tools and techniques.
- 2) Prepare a plan for the implementation of the project and specify the relevant steps that must be followed and how the plan is going to be implemented. Communicate the project plans with appropriate colleagues and stakeholders.
- 3) Critically evaluate your ability to manage a project. Use feedback from others to evaluate your own ability to plan and implement a project, identifying strengths and weaknesses. Create a self-development plan to improve your own performance in managing projects.

Please Note:

Relevant management theories must be identified and appropriately integrated into the assignment.

As a helpful approximate guideline, an indicative word count of about 5000 words would be appropriate.

The learning should be related to either their current organisation, or if not currently working within an organisation, they may complete this task in relation to an organisation with which they are familiar. This could include experience working in a voluntary capacity.

| Provide a critical assessment of the usefulness of project management tools and techniques. 30%                                                                                                                                                                            | Look to demonstrate a good level of understanding of project management tools and techniques and their usefulness for managing a project within your own organisation. Consider how projects are carried out in your workplace e.g. is there an accepted methodology, what tools if any are being used and how well do they work. If the project tools we have covered are not used or could be used better in your workplace explain how. Look to develop a table of criteria which allows you to assess several project management approaches for your organisation. Such criteria might include e.g. ease of understanding, fit with requirements of project within your area, fit with organisational culture, accessibility to others etc. Demonstrate your understanding of PM tools and techniques (it will not be enough just to briefly describe them.) You should then explain why each tool and technique may be appropriate (a good fit) or not for your workplace. |
| Plan the implementation of a project within the workplace. Communicate the project plans with appropriate colleagues and stakeholders. Implement the project plan. 30%                                                                                                     | Look to demonstrate your ability to plan the implementation of a project within your own organisation. You can do this through the use of an appropriate project management tool/technique. A PID (Project Initiation Document – PRINCE2) approach could be helpful for planning your project implementation. Look to identify a project that will be carried out within your area. Explain how you would organise this piece of work as a project. Look to draw upon some recognised project tools/techniques e.g. planning, project appraisal techniques, risk analysis, stakeholder analysis etc. Demonstrate that you are addressing the communication needs of appropriate colleagues and identified project stakeholders. You demonstrate evidence of implementing the project plan and monitoring progress and agreed targets, through the use of a Gantt chart.                                                                                                         |
| Critically evaluate your ability to manage a project. Use feedback from others to evaluate your own ability to plan and implement a project, identifying strengths and weaknesses. Create a selfdevelopment plan to improve your own performance in managing projects. 20% | Seek feedback from workplace colleagues in terms of objective feedback on your ability to manage a project. Use this feedback to critically identify strengths and weaknesses in your own ability to plan and implement a project. Create a self-development plan to improve your own performance in managing projects supported through questionnaires. SMART objectives with specific timescales would strengthen this.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |

Substantial inaccuracies.                                                                                                   | Gaps in knowledge, with only superficial understanding. Some significant inaccuracies.                                                                                                                                 | Evidence of basic knowledge and understanding of the relevant concepts and underlying principles.                                                                                                                                                              | Knowledge is accurate with a good understanding of the field of study.                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Knowledge is extensive. Exhibits understanding of the breadth and depth of established views.                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Excellent knowledge and understanding of the main concepts and key theories. Clear awareness of challenges to established views and the limitations of the knowledge base.                                                                                                                           | Highly detailed knowledge and understanding of the main theories/concepts, and a critical awareness of the ambiguities and limitations of knowledge.                                                                                                                           |
| 3. Analysis Analysis, evaluation and synthesis; logic, argument and judgement; analytical reflection; organisation of ideas and evidence                                                                                                                                                         | Unsubstantiated generalisations, made without use of any credible evidence. Lack of logic, leading to unsupportable/missing conclusions. Lack of any attempt to analyse, synthesise or evaluate. | Some evidence of analytical intellectual skills, but for the most part descriptive. Ideas/findings sometimes illogical and contradictory. Generalised statements made with scant evidence. Conclusions lack relevance. | Evidence of some logical, analytical thinking and some attempts to synthesise, albeit with some weaknesses. Some evidence to support findings/ views, but evidence not consistently interpreted. Some relevant conclusions and recommendations, where relevant | Evidence of some logical, analytical thinking and synthesis. Can analyse new and/or abstract data and situations without guidance. An emerging awareness of different stances and ability to use evidence to support the argument. Valid conclusions and recommendations, where relevant | Sound, logical, analytical thinking; synthesis and evaluation. Ability to devise and sustain persuasive arguments, and to review the reliability, validity & significance of evidence. Ability to communicate ideas and evidence accurately and convincingly. Sound, convincing conclusions / recommendations. | Thoroughly logical work, supported by evaluated evidence. High quality analysis, developed independently or through effective collaboration. Ability to investigate contradictory information and identify reasons for contradictions. Strong, persuasive, conclusions, justifiable recommendations. | Exceptional work; judiciously selected and evaluated evidence. Very high quality analysis, developed independently or through effective collaboration. Ability to investigate contradictory information and identify reasons for contradictions. Highly persuasive conclusions |
| 4. Practical Application and Deployment Effective deployment of appropriate methods, materials, tools and techniques; extent of skill demonstrated in the application of concepts to a variety of processes and/or contexts; formulation of innovative and creative solutions to solve problems. | Limited or no use of methods, materials, tools and/or techniques. Little or no appreciation of the context of the application.                                                                   | Rudimentary application of methods, materials, tools and/or techniques but without consideration and competence. Flawed appreciation of the context of the application.                                                | An adequate awareness and mostly appropriate application of well established methods, materials, tools and/or techniques. Basic appreciation of the context of the application.                                                                                | A good and appropriate application of standard methods, materials, tools and/or techniques. Good appreciation of the context of the application, with some use of examples, where relevant.                                                                                              | A very good application of a range of methods, materials, tools and/or techniques. Very good consideration of the context of the application, with perceptive use of examples, where relevant. Evidence of some innovation and creativity.                                                                     | An advanced application of a range of methods, materials, tools and/or techniques. The context of the application is well considered, with extensive use of relevant examples. Application and deployment extend beyond established conventions. Innovation and creativity evident throughout.       | Outstanding levels of application and deployment skills.
