| Considering you have written a number of user defined API's which all follow a similar line of thought. You have documented your thoughts to a good standard. What was missing is your approach to developing your own API. But on the whole, you have a good understanding of API and how to get them working                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 15              | 10            |

| Generally, a well presented mobile website and the flow of information is good. You have a number of API's that you have written yourself, but they all follow a comment theme i.e., the development of them. If you had managed to implements a third party API, this would have scored better. However, credit is due to the fact thayou have designed your own API - the only problem with the mobile app, it that when you display the details of a player, the API call is made, but nothing is rendered - is this a case of running out of time | 70              | 46            |
