

SOUTH WALES POLICE

NOT PROTECTIVELY MARKED

Deal with Police Protection Powers (PPPs) properly to ensure the safety of that child long after you leave.

Always ASPIRE to do your best

ARRESTING a suspect can help ensure the protection of a child through the application of legally binding bail conditions which can keep the child out of harms way.

SECURING and preserving evidence at the earliest opportunity could be critical for any subsequent prosecution or safeguarding intervention.

PHOTOGRAPH what you see. Include images of out-of-date food, empty cupboards and fridges, unhealthy sleeping conditions and cooking facilities, notable features such as faeces on carpets, dirty nappies, piles of dirty clothing and smashed glass are some indicators of neglect. Highlight the same to CSI photographers at the scene.

INITIAL first accounts and statements made by any suspects must be recorded. Describe your experience fully; be as graphic/detailed as you need to be in order to convey the full circumstances to others.

RECORD all the actions you have undertaken fully, including any that are outstanding, on the occurrence. Crime it! Always submit a PPN (old PPD1)

EMERGENCY DUTY TEAM must be contacted out-of-hours and will be responsible for placing the children in a place of safety. EDT contact numbers are available online or with your local PPU.

Can you be sure that child is in safe hands?
