Module Learning Outcomes (from module syllabus)

Investigate engine intake and exhaust systems

- Investigate and report on the factors which influence the design and operation of induction and exhaust manifolds
- Produce a critical comparison of the induction system used with a single-carburettor, multi-carburettor, single and multi-point fuel injection systems
- Test and produce a critical evaluation of the flow characteristics of a cylinder head using a flow bench

TASK DESCRIPTION

The tasks below should be conducted in the vehicle lab. Record all your results.

Present them in a technical report format with your discussion of results and conclusions, no longer than 20 pages excluding appendices.

Use graphs, diagrams and illustrations where required to assist in your explanations and discussions.

GUIDANCE FOR STUDENTS IN THE COMPLETION OF TASKS

1. Produce a critical comparison of the induction system used with a single-carburettor, multi-carburettor, single and multi-point fuel injection systems
2. Flow bench inlet and exhaust ports of standard cylinder head, at a standard pressure drop of 25" H₂O. You will be taken through a demonstration in the lab and then should be able to obtain this information yourselves. Plot a graph of VOLUMETRIC FLOW RATE (VFR) (m³/sec) against L/D (valve lift / valve head diameter). Use L/D of 0.05, 0.10 ... 0.40.
3. By dividing by the valve area, plot a graph of FLOW VELOCITY (FV) (m/sec) against L/D. Use L/D of 0.05, 0.10 ... 0.40 .
4. Obtain the CO-EFICIENT OF DISCHARGE (Cd) for each L/D ratio.
$$Cd = VFR / \text{Valve Flow Potential}$$

Obtain Valve Flow Potential from P30 / 31 of the Superflow Manual (use 25" H₂O and ensure your units match and use the data for a 'Hemi').
Plot CO-EFICIENT OF DISCHARGE (Cd) against L/D
5. Now you may repeat the exercise for the modified cylinder head.
6. Produce a technical report comparing the two cylinder heads.

NOTE: The guidance offered below is linked to the five generic assessment criteria overleaf.

1. Engagement with Literature Skills

Your work must be informed and supported by scholarly material that is relevant to and focused on the task(s) set. You should provide evidence that you have accessed an appropriate range of sources, which may be academic, governmental and industrial; these sources may include academic journal articles, textbooks, current news articles, organisational documents, and websites. You should consider the credibility of your sources; academic journals are normally highly credible sources while websites require careful consideration/selection and should be used sparingly. Any sources you use should be current and up-to-date, mostly published within the last five years or so, though seminal/important works in the field may be older. You must provide evidence of your research/own reading throughout your work, using a suitable referencing system, including in-text citations in the main body of your work and a reference list at the end of your work.

Guidance specific to this assessment: This will be assessed by the quality of your literature review, cited references and your bibliography

2. Knowledge and Understanding Skills

At level 4, you should be able to demonstrate knowledge of the underlying concepts and principles associated with your area(s) of study. Knowledge relates to the facts, information and skills you have acquired through your learning. You demonstrate your understanding by interpreting the meaning of the facts and information (knowledge). This means that you need to select and include in your work the concepts, techniques, models, theories, etc. appropriate to the task(s) set. You should be able to explain the theories, concepts, etc. to show your understanding. Your mark/grade will also depend upon the extent to which you demonstrate your knowledge and understanding.

Guidance specific to this assessment: This will be assessed through your technical report

3. Cognitive and Intellectual Skills

You should be able to present, evaluate and interpret qualitative and quantitative data, in order to develop lines of argument and make sound judgements in accordance with basic theories and concepts of your subject(s) of study. You should be able to evaluate the appropriateness of different approaches to solving problems related to your area(s) of study and/or work. Your work must contain evidence of logical, analytical thinking. For example, to examine and break information down into parts, make inferences, compile, compare and contrast information. This means not just describing what! But also justifying: Why? How? When? Who? Where? At what cost? You should provide justification for your arguments and judgements using evidence that you have reflected upon the ideas of others within the subject area and that you are able to make sound judgements and arguments using data and concepts. Where relevant, alternative solutions and recommendations may be proposed.

Guidance specific to this assessment: This will be assessed by the quality of your comments and conclusions throughout the report

4. Practical Skills

At level 4, you should be able to apply the basic underlying concepts and principles to evaluate and interpret these within the context of your area of study. You should be able to demonstrate how the subject-related concepts and ideas relate to real world situations and/or a particular context. How do they work in practice? You will deploy models, methods, techniques, and/or theories, in that context, to assess current situations, perhaps to formulate plans or solutions to solve problems, or to create artefacts. This is likely to involve, for instance, the use of real world artefacts, examples and cases, the application of a model within an organisation and/or benchmarking one theory or organisation against others based on stated criteria.

Guidance specific to this assessment: This will be assessed via your practical group operations whilst carrying out controlled tests and your reported procedures

5. Transferable Skills for Life and Professional Practice

Your work must provide evidence of the qualities and transferable skills necessary for employment requiring the exercise of some personal responsibility. This includes demonstrating: that you can communicate the results of your study/work accurately and reliably, and with structured and coherent arguments; that you can initiate and complete tasks and procedures, whether individually and/or collaboratively; fluency of expression; clarity and effectiveness in presentation and organisation. Work should be coherent and well-structured in presentation and organisation.

Guidance specific to this assessment: This will be assessed via the written and presentational quality of your report

STUDENT FEEDBACK FORM

This section details the extent to which the assessment criteria are demonstrated by you, which in turn determines your mark. The marks available for each category of skill are shown. Lecturers will use the space provided to comment on the achievement of the task(s), including those areas in which you have performed well and areas that would benefit from development/improvement.

GENERIC ASSESSMENT CRITERIA

Level 5
In accordance with the Framework for Higher Education Qualifications, at the end of Level 5 students will be expected to have developed sound knowledge and critical understanding of the well-established concepts and principles in their field of study, and of the way in which those principles have developed. They will have learned to apply those concepts and principles more widely outside the context in which they were first studied, including, where appropriate, the application of those principles in an employment context. They will have knowledge of the main methods of enquiry in the subject area, and ability to evaluate critically different approaches to problem solving. They will possess an understanding of the limits of their knowledge, and how this influences their analyses and interpretations. They will be able to use a range of established techniques to initiate and undertake critical analysis of information, and to propose solutions to problems arising from that analysis. They will be able to effectively communicate information, arguments and analysis in a variety of forms to specialist and non-specialist audiences, and deploy key techniques of the discipline effectively. They will be able to undertake further training, develop existing skills and acquire new competences that will enable them to assume significant responsibility within organisations. They will have the qualities and transferable skills necessary for employment requiring the exercise of personal responsibility and decision-making.
