SOCIAL JUSTICE AND WELL-BEING

Understanding Intergenerational Trauma

Dr Joy DeGruy is a renowned researcher and educator. She was an Assistant Professor at Portland State University, and serves on the Advisory Board of Collective Healing Initiative. Dr DeGruy is committed to the healing of those who continue to suffer from past and present injuries, for the well-being of all. She is the author of the book entitled "Post Traumatic Slave Syndrome: America's Legacy of Enduring Injury & Healing" (2005).

Thomas Hubl, PhD is a renowned teacher, author, and international facilitator whose lifelong work integrates the core insights of the great wisdom traditions and mysticism with the discoveries of science. The origin of his work and more than two decades of study and practice on healing collective trauma is detailed in his book Healing Collective Trauma: "A Process for Integrating Our Intergenerational and Cultural Wounds" (2020).

After their keynotes, Joy DeGruy and Thomas Hubl will dialogue about the opportunities and challenges of healing the wounds of history and ancestral trauma, especially in the context of transatlantic enslavement. They will further engage in a Q&A session to explore communities' pathways to healing and well-being.
