

Student Volunteer Opportunity

Help Bring 60-Year-Old Artwork Back to Life

We are creating a special art exhibition at St Brelade's Care Home, featuring artwork created by one of our residents over 60 years ago when he was a young art student of Alfred Janes, the renowned Welsh artist who taught part-time at the Swansea College of Art.

He never pursued a career in art, but his original work has been carefully kept all these years. Much of it is currently rolled up, and we need help to safely prepare, display and curate the artwork for our exhibition.

We are looking for student volunteers who could help us:

- Curate and arrange the exhibition alongside the Wellbeing Coordinator.

- Safely handle and display the 60-year-old artwork
- Work with our residents and hear their creative stories
- Bring a fresh, contemporary student perspective to the exhibition

It's a unique opportunity to connect student creativity with the artistic memories of an older generation and help bring artwork hidden away for six decades back into the spotlight.

Contact Elna Strydom

 wellbeing@stbrelades.uk

 07396 134023