About me

I'm a 6'3 ginger bilingual performer, different from any other performer, as we all are. I'm friendly and will take any chance I can get. I'm passionate about making the best first impression because that's the first moment I'll get judged to see if someone likes me. I'm from a little town up north called Barmouth. I only started performing when I got to college as there were no drama things while I was in school. I instantly fell in love. I loved the thought of getting to be someone else. I love the adrenaline I get from performing. I've been in a couple of short films and a few productions, such as "the answer message" "clwb ply Eira" (short films), "Chicago", "west side story", "sweet charity", "edges" etc. I loved being in these, and I love the experience and different viewpoints they have given me on both theatre and filming productions. I couldn't pick which I loved doing more.

I have many skills. To my surprise I'm still a strong swimmer, and won many competitions with my team up north, when I was younger. I'm a very bubbly person and can make many people laugh. As I said I used to live up north wales but I now live in Cardiff. I love to make people think when they're watching me perform, I love to make them question things when they're leaving. But most of all I love to have an effect on them, in a way where they laugh or cry or are just moved by something I've said or more importantly done, because I believe an action or picture is worth a thousand words.
