

Module: Managing Enterprise in the 21st Century

Module code: BMSW 4006

Module Lecturer: Light Zaglago

Assignment Title: Individual

Reflective Report

Student:

Maricela Gheorghica

2109476@student.uwtsd.ac.uk

Gibbs' Reflective Cycle

Step 1 Description:

I started the Managing Enterprise in the 21st Century course on May 26th, the course is based on the skills for workplace and we know that in 21st Century many companies are looking for a lot of skills in the workplace to make the company work and you need to have an high range of employment skills and how to examine and evaluate a bussiness idea.

Step 2 Feelings:

During the course I tried different emotions and feelings in learning new things but first of all in understanding them. When the course started I was a little distrustful but along the way I started to understand things better and that helped me out.

When you understand things better I can spare you to understand the functions of a company better, at work or even in your own company.

Step 3 Evaluation:

In this course I learned to distinguish many more different things. Some of them are that you have to look after the factors which can affect your company but also those who can help you.

One example is the online business which you have to pay attention to the activity on social and content creation. SWOT Analysis is a good instrument to be used for anyone who wants to start a business, and have constant success.

To have a constant success you must have a good efficiency in products and a superior quality and some managers with high specialization. But, you can also lose the success if you make too big investments and you have debts and you don't have someone with good specializations because they don't have a good distribution in your company.

Step 4 Analysis:

This course taught me to understand how a business works, how I talked to my colleagues about this and we made a good chat, I feel good in the course and it is a very helpful course. It helps with my skills and how to manage and understand the problems and managing a company.

Step 5 Conclusion:

In running a business, and succeeding with it you need great coordination skills and management knowledge to succeed. Also, in a workplace you need to be a good colleague and know how to treat all the things around the business.

I think when you have experience and understanding from the courses you take, I think it guides you better to the desired success.

Step 6 Action Plan:

My management action plan has grown and increased with the help of the course but also of the other courses that increase your knowledge about a business and a workplace in management.

When you have someone to guide you and when you create a beginning on some knowledge that is shared with you it can change your plan and your skills a lot and also it 'sharpens' you all the way to greater management skills.

Reference:

Gibbs, G. (1988). Learning by Doing: A Guide to Teaching and Learning Methods. Oxford: Oxford Further Education Unit