

Perspectives on Child Pedagogy and Development Assignment 1

Chosen topic should be a factor which influences and affects the growth, development and/or wellbeing of children and young people. (Avoid using the same topic as your dissertation to avoid the risk of self-plagiarism).

Examples: Obesity, Autism, Asperger's, ADHD, Dyslexia, Epilepsy, Downs Syndrome, Cerebral Palsy, Eating disorders, Bullying, Play (specific aspects), Domestic Abuse, Substance misuse, oral health, Foetal Alcohol syndrome.

Consider and justify the target audience and purpose of the poster.

Define key terms, including topic chosen. Explain what the topic is about.

Include relevant statistics if appropriate to indicate the trend or extent of the factor on children/young people.

Consider the benefits for and/or impact on the child or young person's growth and pedagogical development and well-being and possible implications for service delivery.

Discuss and evaluate relevant theories of health/child/family development as appropriate and discuss how they apply to the growth and pedagogical development of children and young people.

Include references as previously instructed in the information sections and a full reference list.

Format

You should produce an individual digitally produced poster using software such as Microsoft Publisher/Powerpoint and present it to your peer group (approximately 10 minutes). The poster needs to be in landscape format and presented as a single page in order to fit effectively on the digital whiteboard. You should use an appropriate colour scheme and font size.

You will also produce a supporting 2000 word paper which evaluates the range of relevant literature and variety of sources used to support the topic and its presentation. The poster will present key points from the supporting paper and these will be explained in more detail during the oral presentation.
