In verse and prose with verse prologue and epilogue by the chorus and one appearance of the same the text but not otherwise divided.
Notes—1. The text, including choruses, is in black letter with roman and italic for incidental use.
2. The internal chorus is on D2^v. A speech assigned to Wagner on D1 apparently represents another entry of the chorus, the error being perhaps due to a doubling of the parts.
3. The printer appears from his initials and the device on the title to have been Valentine Simmes. The device at the end is Bushel's.
