

Name: Haris Mahmood

Student number: 2436959

Module code title: LCLM4001

Lecturer name: Peter McCluskie

Assignment title: Task 3

introduction

Throughout the academic skills module, i have experienced a significant amount of growth in my learning such as time management, academic writing skills and problem solving. This module hasn't just refined my academic skills but has also contributed to my personal growth and development in various ways, however this reflective report will explore my strengths and more areas of improvement, I will give give my insights on specific examples from classroom activities task 1 and 2 to showcase my progress.

Strengths

Throughout my learning i have understood that it takes a lot of effort and time that's needed to understand each subject and to understand the classroom and the people that are in the classroom which was quite easy to understand the way I've connected and gained social skills is unbelievable and i have adapted to every situation in the class room, This module has helped me get better at organizing my work. For Task 1, I had to write a research paper. I learned that planning ahead makes a big difference. I made an outline first, which helped me stay on track and write clearly. It also helped me find good sources for my paper. I learned how to pick trustworthy and useful information, which made my research stronger.

I also got better at speaking in class. At first, I was nervous, but the more I took part in discussions, the easier it became. Talking to my classmates helped me see things from different angles and think more deeply. Now, I feel more confident when I share my ideas in class.

Areas for Improvement:

There are still things I need to work on. One of them is time management. I finished everything on time, but I often waited until the last minute to start. For example, for Task 2, the presentation, I could've planned better. In the future, I will start earlier and break tasks into smaller steps. This way, I won't feel rushed, and I will read over what I'm writing so I can check back and this way I can find any areas that need to be improved or ask my tutor and get different opinions.

Another area for improvement is feedback. When I got feedback on Task 2, I focused too much on the parts I didn't do well in. I now know I should use feedback to help me get better. Next time, I will pay more attention to what I can improve and make changes earlier. Impact on Academic Development. This module helped me become better at writing. Before, I had trouble making strong points in my writing. But now, I can use research to support my ideas more clearly. I also became better at discussing ideas in class. Listening to others helped me think more deeply and explain my thoughts better and this has helped me with my life outside of class.

Impact on Personal Development:

This module has also made me more confident. The focus on improving skills helped me see challenges as a chance to learn. I'm now more open to trying new things, like speaking in class and asking for help when needed, I also learned more about myself. I know where I'm strong and where I need to improve. For example, I need to work on time management and use feedback better. This awareness will help me improve in my studies and in life and will help me progress better in my career.

Conclusion:

In conclusion, this module has helped me improve my school and personal skills. I learned how to organize my work better, join class discussions, and write clearer arguments. These skills have made me more confident and better at learning. However, I still need to get better at managing my time and using feedback from teachers. Even though I have more to work on, what I learned will help me in the future. These skills will make it easier for me to do well in my studies and in other parts of my life as I keep growing and learning.