

Suggested activities for Week 5

- View the two lectures on Moodle
- Read chapter 5 ('The Renaissance') in Dafydd Johnston's The Literature of Wales

- I won't set too much other reading for this week as you will probably be thinking about the assignment, but the following will be useful if you are doing the assignment on the Renaissance:
  - R. Geraint Gruffydd's chapter 'Wales and the Renaissance' in G. Williams & R.O. Jones (eds.) The Celts and the Renaissance (available here or via the Leganto reading list).
  - Morfydd E. Owen's chapter 'Welsh Prose in the Cywydd period' in A.O.H. Jarman, G.R. Hughes and D. Johnston (eds.), A Guide to Welsh Literature, volume II (here or via Leganto).
  - Article on the Cistercian monastic schools by David Thomas in Cambridge Medieval Celtic Studies, 3 (1982), 76–80
<[http://cmcspublications.com/downloads/CMCS%203%20\[1982\]%20%C2%A9.pdf](http://cmcspublications.com/downloads/CMCS%203%20[1982]%20%C2%A9.pdf)>
  - The National Library of Wales's Digital Gallery has useful information about, and digital reproductions of, many manuscripts and early printed books:
<<https://www.library.wales/discover/digital-gallery/manuscripts>>
<<https://www.library.wales/discover/digital-gallery/printed-material>>
  - You can find information on the individual Welsh humanist scholars, and Gutun Owain and some other medieval poets, in the Dictionary of Welsh Biography <<https://biography.wales/>>