Evaluating how it works

- ❖ Can track behaviour
- ❖ Some children do not care about positive or negative points
- ❖ Can be misleading
- ❖ Confusing
- ❖ Inaccurate if they are not labelled or interpreted correctly
- ❖ they can also create bias or distortion, as you can manipulate the data or the visual elements to emphasize or hide aspects.

conclusion

Class Charts is a powerful tool with the potential to improve classroom management and enhance communication by giving out positive points, but its effectiveness is not guaranteed. Teachers may unconsciously award points differently to different students, leading to unfair or inaccurate assessments. This can create a perception of unfairness and erode student trust. Not all parents have easy access to technology or the digital literacy skills needed to effectively use the platform.
