'Cyfle i wneud gwahaniaeth go iawn...'
'A chance to make a real difference...'

Sarah Stone yw Cyfarwyddwr Gweithredol y Samariaid yng Nghymru, sy'n annog pobl yng Nghymru i siarad am hunanladdiad a gofyn am gymorth cyn i'w hiechyd meddwl fynd yn ormod. Yn ddiweddar, rhyddhawyd ymchwil bwysig ganddynt sy'n cysylltu tlodi ag ymddygiad hunanladdol yng Nghymru.

Cyn hyn roedd Sarah yn Ddirprwy Gomisiynydd i Bobl Hŷn yng Nghymru, lle bu'n helpu i ddatblygu 'Gofal gydag Urddas?', ymchwil arloesol a edrychodd ar ddatblygu gofal mwy tosturiol i bobl hŷn mewn wardiau ysbytai.

'Un o'r pethau mwyaf ysbrydoledig ynglŷn â gweithio yn y trydydd sector yw'r cysylltiad dwi'n ei gael â phobl,' meddai Sarah. 'Mae hi wedi bod yn fraint i mi gwrdd a gweithio gyda gymaint o bobl sy'n weithgar yn eu cymunedau, yn gwirfoddoli, yn trio ymdopi â'r heriau mawr y mae bywyd wedi'u taflu atynt. Mae gweithio yn y trydydd sector i mi wedi bod yn gyfle i wneud gwahaniaeth go iawn.'

Sarah Stone is the Executive Director for Samaritans in Wales, encouraging people in Wales to talk about suicide and ask for help before their mental health becomes overwhelming. They recently released important research linking poverty to suicidal behaviour in Wales.

Before this Sarah was the Deputy Commissioner for Older People in Wales, where she helped with the development of 'Dignified Care?' a ground-breaking piece of research that looked at developing more compassionate care for older people who are on hospital wards.

'One of the most inspiring things about working in the third sector is the contact I have had with people,' says Sarah. 'It has been my privilege to encounter and work with so many who may be active in their community, be a volunteer, be trying to cope with the great challenges life has brought them. Working in the third sector for me has been a chance to make a real difference.'
