

I am sorry that my notes are handwritten, I hope it's alright as it helps to memorise a bit better. Let me know if you accept only typed notes in the future and I will switch to that!

f) The slave-men ^{are} carrying the garlands and the pots.
Sunt equum et servum Demaenetus vocat.

Exercise top p. 24

Lar is entering onto the stage. It is a god of Euclion's household. Lar guards the treasures of Demaenetus underground. There's a lot of treasures in the pot. However he ~~knows~~ knows nothing about the treasure of Euclio, which Lar doesn't care of. Because he gives no ointment, no garlands, no honour. However Lar loves Phaedra, the old man's golden(?) daughter. Because Euclion's gives a lot of ointment, a lot of garlands, a lot of honour to his daughter. Therefore Lar gives the pot of Demaenetus to Euclion's, because Euclion's' daughter is good. However Euclion's placed the pot underground again because he's greedy. Because ~~he~~ ^{Euclio} fears thieves a lot. he has a lot of concerns. The treasure torments greedy & anxious old man because the houses of ~~the~~ → people are full of thieves.
