INTRODUCTION

Introduction is all about general and specific contexts. The purpose is to be defined the idea of the topic or the essay. We just use introduction to get for the reader cover information with overview about the topic. Its own sense like an outline context can be providing through introduction as well.

Drawing a map in introduction it makes easy to understand for the reader. And why it's important and how you put the discussion by plan and arranged. To assert the argument and thesis should include in introduction and it'll be clear to find out the reader simply (Lizard, 2022).

MAIN FINDINGS

SECTION 1

We as a student, we used to introduce about academic writing is to create ideas in clear way and understanding skills. Academic writing is base in fact and similar information, which is in clarified simply clearly and easy-going (Valdes, 2019).

We usually use write academic paper for different program of issues like as a studying, books, and any other documents. Its usable and clear idea page it is which is like mind reader.

The main useful thing to write academic introduction is to make easily get what is the topic of the writing and what is said all inside the contents. Generally, about the topic or (paper) to get understand overall.

For example, in newspaper: if we put at the top of the topic about the car accident in somewhere, the reader or the listener can know simply which road is closed and notify what is going on next (UAGC , 2022).

ACADAMIC WRITING

The importance of academic writing is; if we just keep writing and reading texts it is helping gain knowledge and us quick. The benefits are makes us good writer. Final description for academic writing is, I would explain that; we can say it gives clear information for readers. and good reading, writing and improving our knowledge as well (Fang, 2021).

We define academic writing briefly to clarify the present argument. And we can use as a good communication way of study. It helps us to be a good speaker, a good writer and move up our communicate skill. When we used to write in academic writing need put the right and fact information to our report; it can easily understand for readers. And it improves our mind create its own idea, so this means our mind try to search incredible things by other hands.

Academic writing is helpful for all students to improve their knowledge and learning skill. And we'll see all about academic writing useful things below in main body from the contents. It helps us to ready and prepare for our futures and teach us to decide for our time managements (Fang, 2021).

It describes how academic writing is carried out in academic settings for academic purposes and what the purpose of academic writing is for scientific achievement in a university setting.

This article uses academic writing to explain what academic writing is. The manner in which the conversation takes place is different from that of normal conversation on a daily basis. In addition to being highly crafted, academic writing should be well structured, well argued, and carefully constructed. The goal of academic writing is to express ideas and respond to external information (Fang, 2021).

While academic writing encompasses many different forms of writing, we should acknowledge that academic writing encompasses many different types of writing. We write for different reasons, so it is imperative for us to recognize that academic writing encompasses a wide range of writing styles. Students will also be exposed to literature reviews and empirical research articles, grant proposals, conference abstracts, and commentaries. In addition, they will be exposed to memos, response essays, and book reviews. In addition to academic writing, we write a wide variety of other types of paper (Fang, 2021).

Each paper type is unique in its purpose, structure, and language characteristics.

What are the reasons for writing academically and what is the importance of doing so?

Writing in scholarly disciplines serves as a platform for producing, codifying, transmitting, evaluating, renovating, teaching, and acquiring knowledge and ideology. In order to achieve academic success, you must be proficient at writing in scholarly styles, as this is essential to understanding the disciplinary aspects of your field of study. Your ability to control academic writing will enable you to gain power, a sense of agency, and capital. This is as you expand your knowledge, develop your identity, perform disciplinary practices, establish your social standing, and shape your career.

Importance of Academic Writing

In order to be able to teach a student how to write well, one must develop an interest in writing, regardless of the circumstances. This is necessary in order to teach them. A student must be able to develop the ability to write well so that they can learn how to do so well. In order for students to be able to complete assignments in a timely manner, they must master this skill. Aside from this, it is particularly useful for students that have to complete complex writing assignments, especially scholarly ones. In this case, it can be particularly helpful. In addition to academic writing, there are several levels of writing. A few essays you have written in class do not make you a skilled academic writer, nor does it make you one simply because you have written them. It is also imperative to follow instructions accurately, write in the appropriate academic tone, and create quality content in addition to sounding professional (Isessay.com, 2018).

In addition to sounding professional, using a professional tone of voice requires following instructions correctly, composing high-quality content, etc. You are also required to set realistic expectations for yourself.

CRITICAL ANALYSIS

Critical marked by a tendency to find and cancellation to errors and flaws a critical attitude. Example, A critical temperature of water is 100-degree cent grade; it's boiling point at standard atmospheric pressure (Univeristy of york, 2022).

When we define critical writing is just like critically, we have to be sure when we read or heard anything about the book or situations. If we need make sure to get it clearly, we have to ask questions, write some notes and get more information (Hull, 2022).

They won't be different ideas we used them to help us a support to get the right point (Hull, 2022).

For most of build strategies and employees' easy way to solve the problems can help and make better in their job by the way of critical thinking process. Cause of this most of the employers need someone good in critical writing or thinking skill high-level employees. And need to hire them immediately.

Employees may be active and be good independent and competent in reflective in critical thinking. If the employees are good critical thinking, they are effective in critical writing it means in other hand.

Critical thinking helps to our personal growth and our happiness as well. We need critical writing to grow us through and build our own arguments from different sources. And also, we can evaluate information by analysing in critical writing. Higher grades we score when we use critical writing ideal. We used to focus on reading critically sources also are very useful and so important information to get in (Univerisity of york, 2021) .

Critical analysis is so important to think critically to get understand, ideas and evidence. Critical analysis essay main purpose to be clearly understood for the reader to explain the meaning and subjects.

It used to help us to remove our mistake from writing similarities and slang. In the other hand it can help us to rewrite properly our ideas depending on the other work. We may have to put references, when we use other sources, and we may have to focus in the analysis of the subjects than the explanation on it.

When we need to start to write any essay, first we have to read the source that can help us in support our opinions. While writing your essay, consider other people's opinions. When writing your essay, you should take in to account the different backgrounds and experiences of people who may be reading it. In addition, you should take into account the responses you are expecting to have to your topic. It is imperative that you do not offend anyone with your choices.

The second step is to prepare a draft essay. You should begin by providing an overview of your topic, including key points, and then move towards your thesis statement with each paragraph. In order to ensure that all arguments are supported by evidence, you need to ensure that each paragraph is fair and free from extreme bias and irregularities. Analyse each paragraph and provide a summary of your argument.

Lastly, your critical analysis essay must conclude with your overall approach.

When we summarise: - In order to begin writing an essay, it is crucial that you provide a brief description of your source. In order to demonstrate that do not have a bias against the source you will be discussing or that your argument is not presented in a biased manner, you should provide a summary of your arguments. It is a suitable way to demonstrate your understanding of the topic and lack of bias toward the source you will be analysing. The goal of this exercise is to show how well you are understanding of the topic.

How would you describe the author's method of organizing the text as he or she wrote it? In order for the reader to understand how and why the author has selected the audience that has, he must understand who the author is trying to reach.

Assisting you in gaining a deeper understanding of the purpose of the authors' word is to identify the assumptions on which their work was based.

To illustrate his point, the author uses a variety of rhetorical techniques, including language, imagery in the following paragraph.

Thesis writing is an essential aspect of the academic process.

As part of a critical analysis essay, you must write a thesis statement that summarizes the meaning of the source you have analysed. If you don't have the ability to express your opinions clearly and effectively, it is imperative to be prepared for challenges in the future. If you are able to convey your point of view clearly and thoroughly, your readers will be influenced by it (Jonns, 2020).

CONCLUSION

Conclusion is the completion of the paragraph, essay, and the main content about it and making the arguments. About the main point put summarise although you put all answer about the content or the essay (Lizard, 2022).

Some ideas, evidence and opinions we put as a conclusion, a result, outcome, arrangement and final decisions (Lizard, 2022).

Evidence and argument evaluating for the reader, and it improves more understanding of it (Bangor University, 2015).

To write most an effective one in drafting in conclusion make it easier when knowing what we consider. The main point of conclusion is to remind what was the topic and its definitions and the aim of the article to readers. Opening and closing ideas and we are using the same image (Indeed, 2021).
