

CLCS4009

READING ANTIQUITY: A SURVEY OF ANCIENT LITERATURE

Lecture 33:

Essay Feedback and
Self-Reflection

Dr. Crystal Addey

Key to abbreviations used in your essay feedback

- Punct. = Faulty punctuation
- Grammar = Faulty grammar
- Sp. = spelling mistake and / or typo
- Poor exp. = poor expression (please work on improving your written English)
- Language too colloquial = avoid colloquial language and slang terms and expressions (e.g. DO NOT use phrases or terms such as 'this issue is black and white')

Improvement of your Writing Style and Presentation

- If you see any of these abbreviations in your essay, please note the following tips for improvement:
- Write your essay in good time to allow checking and proofreading.
- Proofread your essay carefully before submitting it.
- General: read as many books as possible (academic and non-academic). You will notice the improvement in your writing style!

Key to abbreviations used in your essay: references

- Ref. = full reference needed in the text of your essay.
- Refs. = full references needed in the text of your essay.
- Evidence? = You need to provide evidence from ancient and, possibly, modern sources to support your arguments or assertions.
- Examples? = You need to provide examples to support your arguments or assertions.

References

- Good referencing in your essay and other coursework is absolutely essential in order to avoid the dangers of plagiarism.
- Good referencing helps to support and illustrate (with evidence) your arguments, points, analysis and assertions.
- Good referencing allows the reader to check the evidence used to support your argument(s) so that they can make up their own mind (therefore, it encourages intellectual freedom).

Correct Referencing

- Please read and refer to the School of Classics Reference Guidance Handbook 2011-12 for further guidance, advice and instructions.

Questions?