1. Research	In my research I approached the role as an Educational Mental Health Practitioner (EMHP) by reading articles online, going through the NHS website about the job role. The difficulties I've faced with my research is the fact that I couldn't get more information with Harvard references due to technology difficulties apart from the trouble I faced I had the NHS website to help me find information about the job role of an EMHP and the school articles I found gave me a more understanding about the job but to modify my research to present the CRAAP test helped me to break down the points of my research.
2. Presenting	For the presentation I had prepared a script about the job role I had wrote a detailed scripted about the job role itself, about the experience that is needed and degree too. The research for the job went well as it helped me break down the script to speak in my presentation, I also faced some issues due to putting too much information into a 5-minute time frame which is why the next time I would keep the information shorter and easier for myself.

3. Challenges you faced with the presentation	The challenges I faced with this task were finding articles and reports within in schools and colleges about EMHPs who help young child and young adults with their mental difficulties and how the accomplish it on a day-to-day basis. For this the support that could be necessary are to get an appointment with a EMHP to get better understanding of the job role and to see the role in a detailed and professional way to get a better understanding of the needs for this job role.
4. Actions to improve	To improve my research for task 3 I would look in to finding more information around the job so that I am able to feedback on the fact that the job role are based on facts as well as the degree for it but as well as the experience and training needed for it.
5. Further steps needed to prepare for Task 3	For task 3 I will be going out to do more research in person and online to get written information and information face to face so that I am able to add in information I have researched through the NHS website as well as the article that I had found. But also going through the Harvard research to add in more information to support my research which would help me write up a detailed and structured report to back up me on my task 3 report.
