- This video makes it clear at the start that there was not much planning involved in this sequence
- The lack of planning ahead of time makes me wonder if he checked whether he could fly there because of this i wonder if he is flying legally
- By the look of the video the drone was flying safely as there is clear sky no wind based on the look and sound of the video and he did not fly over any crowds and does not fly it over the deer
- In the video he stays a reasonable distance from the deer and the deer look quite unbothered so because of this i think they most likely did not notice the drone, which is good as it does not cause stress to the deer when they are filmed
- He also only films the deer for what seems to be a short amount of time, which limits the amount of video he can get but it does reduce the time the deer have to be around the drone which is a positive in my opinion as it most likely reduces their stress
- From the video i don't know what drone he has but based on the video it is a small drone that isn't too loud so although the video isn't that well planned the drone used fits quite well for the activity
- This video mostly includes wide panning shots which i think fit well as it allows the viewer to see multiple deer at once and also shows the environment
