Energy and environment

What can be done to reduce the impact of climate change on the UK? Will prevention plans be sufficient to tackle the increasing threat posed by flooding? Will new nuclear power stations meet the future energy needs of the UK? How can the Government better promote the greater use of renewable energy?

These are some of the questions facing MPs and Members of the Lords that are debated in every parliamentary session. This energy and environment topical issues page provides more information about what Parliament is doing on these matters.
