Response

The technical support I received all came from various staff members of the MACAA. I find UWTSD lacking as far as technology and technological support go.

I keep forgetting about the MACCA Online Library so I have yet to use it.

As this is my first module I cannot compare it to the others at this time.

I'm not sure if what I have learnt would make me more employable.

Have to say it was like being hit with a tsunami of information and reading requirements - like many other new students (we talk!), I'd always considered myself to be relatively well-read and comfortable with the academic process, given my previous academic study and the fact I'm a qualified FE teacher to boot. Really wasn't prepared for the volume of work required, and still feel like I'm catching up - but facing 4 years of constantly feeling like catching up is a daunting prospect. Essay writing requirements are unbelievably onerous - I fully understand that it's a university not a course requirement, but it takes away from the whole learning experience rather when you're having to check for punctuation rather than content. I know others have felt that academic support has been somewhat lacking, but I'm well used to working in isolation so haven't found it to be much of a problem to date. Did find the comments on my first essay somewhat harsh though, albeit much better on the second. Haven't answered a couple of questions re tech support as didn't find it a problem. I would be absolutely delighted if this course improved my employability but I doubt it will - none of my other degrees have!! I totally LOVE JSTOR and could happily spend the rest of my life furling around in it's depths. Overall: a bit of a shock to the system but I'll get over it. I usually do!

I would appreciate an introduction to the use of the online library. Since I am studying online, the physical presence of books in a library is of no use for me. I really need ebooks or scans to have access to the fundamentals for each essay. Even trying to buy them for myself is limited, since books are sometimes out of print and if offered in second hand sometimes demand unbearable high prices.

Thank you for your response
