9. DAMAGE DEPOSITS

You will be required to pay a "Damages Deposit" to either your accommodation supplier or directly to HITH Festival to handle on your behalf. The amount is variable between DUINRELL and HITH, it will be communicated with you beforehand. If any damage occurs and HITH Festival is liable to pay for the damage, then the Damage Deposits will be dealt with in accordance with the conditions below.

If we are unable to identify the likely individual(s) who caused the damage or the lodge(s) within which such individual(s) is staying or if we are unable to identify the group of such individual(s) then we will take the cost of the damage from the Damage Deposits pooled with all of the individuals of that room.

"Damages" that we can claim are all the damages that HITH is liable to pay together with any costs that we incur or are liable to incur as a result of our reasonable approach to dealing with damage and cleaning issues including, without limitation, any breakages in or damage to your apartment or communal areas within apartment blocks, any damage to private businesses, residential property or public venues in the resort, any damage to outdoor public areas in the resort, your group booking deficits, and complaint fines including noise complaints, behaviour fines. We are also entitled to deduct any other amounts owed to us by you or other members of your group from your Damage Deposits including, without limitation, any unpaid balance that you owe us, any amendment Charges and any administration charges. HITH festival is the facilitator for the damage deposit process ensuring that your check in is quicker by avoiding direct contact and payments with local suppliers

Certain resort suppliers may insist that you allow them to take payment from your credit card or leave a cash deposit with them to cover damage that you / an individual(s) staying in your apartment may make e.g. your accommodation provider may not release room keys to you unless you leave a cash deposit with them. If a resort supplier retains any payment from you because of damage that you or another individual(s) in your apartment has caused please notify us so that we can make sure that you are not charged twice for the same damage. After your holiday has ended we will send you an email that contains details of the amount of Damage Deposit that will be refunded to you. This will be within 8 weeks from the end date of the event (we will always endeavour to return them sooner).

Any Damage Deposits that are returned will be returned to the card that the Main Booker used to make the deposit payment. It is the Main Booker's responsibility to ensure that this card is functioning appropriately. If it is not, for example, because it has expired, we will need written notification from the Main Booker of the new card details and we will deduct an administration charge of £5 from the amount of Damage Deposits that we return. If you wish to reclaim your Damage Deposit into an international bank account you are liable for the costs of the international bank transfer. Damage deposits unclaimed after 42 days from the notification of return will be void.

Where we, in our reasonable opinion, need to investigate a damage claim and/or contest the level of a damage claim being brought by a third party, for example, a local agency, the mayor's office or the Gendarmerie, we will charge a minimum of £40 by way of an administration charge for the work that we do investigating and/or contesting the claim. If we spend significant time investigating and/or contesting a damage claim we may charge up to £100 by way of an administration charge for the work that we do investigating and/or contesting the claim however we will not charge more than £40 unless the value of the damages claim is in excess of £400.

If you cause damage or if you are staying in an apartment within which another individual is staying who causes damage, then you must pay for the costs of such damage while you are still in resort if we ask you to. If you fail to pay for the damage costs in resort when we ask you to then, without limiting our rights to recover payment from you, we may cancel your booked arrangements immediately without any liability on our part. In these circumstances you will be required to leave the accommodation or other service and we will have no responsibility to find alternatives for you. We will not make any refunds to you or cover any expenses that you may incur as a result of us cancelling your services in these circumstances.

If you hire any items from us or our suppliers including, without limitation, helmets or clothing and you fail to return them to us or to our suppliers on time, you will be responsible for the replacement costs of the relevant items. We may deduct the cost of these items from your Damage Deposit.

10. Name Changes - Name changes are charged at £10 (GBP) per name change.

HITH Festival reserves the right to update these terms and conditions. These terms are always available on the website and the booking partner website for easy access of the person
