

This reflective report discusses my learning experience during the Academic Skills module. Throughout this module, I have developed a range of important academic skills that will support me in my future studies and career development.

During Task 1, I completed a quiz that focused on key academic skills such as time management, referencing, academic writing, and avoiding plagiarism. This task helped me understand how important it is to organise my time effectively and plan my work in advance. I realised that good time management can reduce stress and improve the quality of my assignments.

In Task 2, I completed an exercise where I practiced note-taking and paraphrasing. This activity helped me improve my ability to understand information and rewrite it in my own words. I also learned how to structure paragraphs correctly using academic conventions. This is very important because it helps avoid plagiarism and improves the clarity of my writing.

During the module, I also participated in class discussions about referencing, academic integrity, and writing skills. These discussions were very useful because they allowed me to learn from both the lecturer and other students. I gained a better understanding of how to use sources correctly and how to reference them using the Harvard referencing style.

I also received feedback from my lecturer on my work. This feedback helped me identify my strengths and areas where I need to improve. For example, I learned that I need to be more careful with referencing and improve the structure of my paragraphs.

One of the most important skills I developed during this module is academic writing. I learned how to organise my ideas clearly and present them in a logical way. I also improved my ability to analyse information and express my opinions in a more formal and academic style.

Another important skill I developed is critical thinking. I learned how to evaluate information and decide what is relevant to my work. This skill is important because it helps me produce better quality assignments.

In the future, I will use the skills I have developed in this module to improve my academic performance. I will continue to practice time management, referencing, and academic writing. I will also try to apply critical thinking in all my assignments.

In conclusion, the Academic Skills module has been very useful for my development as a student. It has helped me build confidence in my abilities and improve my understanding of academic requirements. I believe that the skills I have gained will help me succeed in my future studies.
