

TIGGS DA AUTHOR

Tiggs Da Author is a rapper and composer who has gained recognition in a very short period of time. Tiggs has been working on music for a long time as he was a member of the Rebellife crew, releasing tracks with artists such as Paigey Cakey and TZZ.

He made acquaintances with the artist Sway while working in the same studio facility and this has granted Tiggs the chance to be featured in "Still Sway and Kane" (a remix of Still D.R.E) by Sway and the artist Kano. Later on, he was also featured in another release for Sway, "No Sleep".

The artist Sway saw the potential in Tiggs, particularly after the first couple of collabs, and decided to sign him up to release records on his own label, DCypha. It was on this label that he released his politically driven debut EP, Evlution. Off the back of the EP release, Tiggs Da Author received a fair amount of exposure, including prime-time BBC Radio One DJ Zane Lowe placing him in the "Next Hype" section on his show.

As a football fan, Tiggs saw his track "Run" featured on the Fifa 16 videogame. A few months later, this same song was chosen to be part of the Bridget Jones Baby Movie soundtrack.

The multi-talented artist and composer has also collaborated with Stefflon Don, Nines, and has composed and produced with J Hus and Tinie Tempah.

In 2019 the artist released his latest single in collaboration with Juls and Santi, titled "Maayaa", which is a touching and powerful display of feminine vibes, showcasing a number of inspirational women and capturing their energy.

Later this year, he released his mixtape "MOREFIRE" that gained him even more recognition within the UK rap and grime scenes. And the future looks even brighter: With the dust barely settled on his creative and melodic mixtape, he's back with a new hit!

This talented artist is currently signed to Tileyard Music.
