

LEVEL 6 ASSESSMENT SPECIFICATION

Student name:	Anonymous submission	Student ID number:	NA
Programme:	BSc Psychology/BA Counselling & Psychology
Module:	Prejudice & Discrimination RESIT
Module code:	M6X00916	Contribution to Overall Module Assessment (%):	50%
Lecturer:	Dr Paul Hutchings	Internal Verifier:	Dr Kate Williams
Assignment Title:	Critically evaluate whether the IAT truly measures prejudice	Word count (or equivalent):	2,500 ($\pm 10\%$)
Submission deadline:	23.59hrs on 22 nd July 2020	Return date of provisional marks & written feedback:	23.59hrs on 10 th August 2020
Submission method:	All written assessments, where practical and possible, must be submitted via Turnitin unless otherwise instructed by the Lecturer. (Please DO NOT put this assessment specification into Turnitin or it will match many similarities with other students' submissions.) Alternative submission method (if applicable): Late submission of the assessment will result in a late penalty mark. Penalties for late submission: Up to one week late, maximum mark of 40%. Over one week late, 0%. Only the Extenuating Circumstances Panel may approve a change to submission dates.
Academic honesty / referencing:	Academic honesty is required. In the main body of your submission you must give credit to authors on whose research and ideas your work is based. Append to your submission a reference list that indicates the books, articles, etc. that you have used, cited or quoted in order to complete this assessment.

Module Learning Outcomes (from module syllabus)
Learning Outcomes	PLO	Assessment Criteria To achieve each outcome a student must demonstrate the ability to:
Critically appraise competing theories in prejudice and discrimination research.	6.1	Critically appraise competing theories in relation to a current research area in prejudice and discrimination
Demonstrate critical understanding of current issues in prejudice and discrimination.	6.4	Synthesise appropriate literature to demonstrate critical understanding of current issues in prejudice and discrimination
Critically consider the realism and ethics of prejudice and discrimination.	6.6	Demonstrate a critical awareness of the implications of current research in real-life terms
The ability to present work to a professional standard suitable for an academic audience through appropriate media	6.11	Present work to a professional standard using appropriate media

TASK DESCRIPTION

The Implicit Association Test (IAT; Greenwald, McGhee, & Schwartz, 1998) has been one of the most widely used methodological tools ever used in psychology, with the numbers of research papers using the IAT numbering in the tens of thousands. However, disputes regarding what the IAT truly measures have existed since its inception, with debates regarding out-group bias versus in-group favouritism, implicit versus explicit prejudice, the role of culture in shaping implicit prejudice, and the very measurement of prejudice in terms of reaction times forming many of the arguments. Some of the major figures in social psychology, including Greenwald, Banaji, Arkes, Tetlock, Nosek, and Devine, have all been prominent within this debate. However, more recently researchers such as Jost have also advocated alternatives to the IAT and these should also be considered in your evaluation.

This essay requires a critical understanding of the arguments within this debate that should take in some of the key authors above and their theoretical and empirical arguments. It should consider views from all sides of the arguments and reach a solid conclusion where a standpoint is taken by the writer based upon the literature covered.

Your assignment must follow the academic conventions for Psychology and you must adhere to the guidance provided in your handbook and the Academic Study Skills module. Primary and secondary sources must be cited appropriately both within the text and in your reference list, and all references must be in the APA referencing style.

GUIDANCE FOR STUDENTS IN THE COMPLETION OF TASKS

NOTE: The guidance offered below is linked to the five generic assessment criteria overleaf.

1. Engagement with Literature Skills

Your work must be informed and supported by scholarly material that is relevant to and focused on the task(s) set; you should make use of scholarly reviews and primary sources, where appropriate (for example, refereed research articles and/or original materials appropriate to the discipline). You should provide evidence that you have accessed a wide range of sources, which may be academic, governmental and industrial; these sources may include academic journal articles, textbooks, current news articles, organisational documents, and websites. You should consider the credibility of your sources; academic journals are normally highly credible sources while websites require careful consideration/selection and should be used sparingly. Any sources you use should be current and up-to-date, mostly published within the last five years or so, though seminal/important works in the field may be older. You must provide evidence of your research/own reading throughout your work, using a suitable referencing system, including in-text citations in the main body of your work and a reference list at the end of your work.

Guidance specific to this assessment: The literature you engage with in order to inform your essay should only be from peer-reviewed journal articles and relevant textbooks. It is expected that you would have widely researched the literature on prejudice and discrimination relating to the Implicit Association Test (IAT) from primary sources as well as secondary sources and have considered the use of the IAT across different types of prejudice.

2. Knowledge and Understanding Skills

At level 6, you should be able to demonstrate coherent and detailed knowledge and a systematic understanding of the subject area, at least some of which is informed by the latest research and/or advanced scholarship within the discipline. You should be aware of the uncertainty, ambiguity and limits of knowledge. Your work must demonstrate the growing extent of your knowledge and systematic understanding of concepts and underlying principles associated with the subject area. Knowledge relates to the facts, information and skills you have acquired through your learning. You demonstrate your understanding by interpreting the meaning of the facts and information (knowledge). This means that you need to select and include in your work the concepts, techniques, models, theories, etc. appropriate to the task(s) set. You should be able to explain the theories, concepts, etc. meaningfully to show your understanding. Your mark/grade will also depend upon the extent to which you demonstrate your knowledge and understanding; ideally each should be complete and detailed, with comprehensive coverage.

Guidance specific to this assessment: You must be able to demonstrate sound knowledge and understanding of the theories underpinning the different arguments regarding the use of the IAT as a measurement tool. This is a complex area and it must be clear in your arguments that you possess this understanding.

3. Cognitive and Intellectual Skills

You should be able to: critically evaluate evidence, arguments, assumptions, abstract concepts and data some of which are at the forefront of a discipline (and that may be incomplete) to devise and sustain arguments, to make judgements and/or solve problems; describe and comment upon particular aspects of current research, or equivalent advanced scholarship, in the discipline. Your work must contain evidence of logical, analytical thinking, evaluation and synthesis. For example, to examine and break information down into parts, make inferences, compile, compare and contrast information. This means not just describing what! But also justifying: Why? How? When? Who? Where? At what cost? At all times, you must provide justification for your arguments and judgements. Evidence that you have reflected upon the ideas of others within the subject area is crucial to you providing a reasoned and informed debate within your work.

Furthermore, you should provide evidence that you are able to make sound judgements and convincing arguments using data and concepts. Sound, valid conclusions are necessary and must be derived from the content of your work. Where relevant, alternative solutions and recommendations may be proposed.

Guidance specific to this assessment: The argument regarding whether the IAT truly measures prejudice is a nuanced one, but does have some core assumptions. To display good cognitive and intellectual skills it will be important for you to consider the nuanced nature of some of the more subtle arguments, and to bring the argument together in a compelling way. The ability to weave a narrative together, to consider how the evidence and theories may complement or compete with each other, and identifying gaps in explanations, are critical to doing well for this assessment criteria.

4. Practical Skills

At level 6, you should be able to apply the methods and techniques that you have learned to review, consolidate, extend and apply your knowledge and understanding, and to initiate and carry out projects. You will deploy accurately established techniques of analysis and enquiry relevant to the discipline, and apply them in complex and unpredictable contexts, to devise and sustain arguments and/or to solve problems. You should be able to frame appropriate questions to achieve a solution - or identify a range of solutions. You should be able to demonstrate how the subject-related concepts and ideas relate to real world situations and/or a particular context. How do they work in practice? You will deploy models, methods, techniques, and/or theories, in that context or circumstances, to assess current situations, perhaps to formulate plans or solutions to solve problems, or to create artefacts, some of which may be innovative and creative. This is likely to involve, for instance, the use of real world artefacts, examples and cases, the application of a model within an organisation and/or benchmarking one theory or organisation against others based on stated criteria. You should show awareness of the limitations of concepts and theories when applied in particular contexts.

Guidance specific to this assessment: There is a lot of research evidence available, with the IAT having been used in thousands of studies. However, this essay is about more than simply showing that the IAT is valid because it has been used many times; the critiques of its validity are important for the current essay, and they should form a major element of your essay. However, you only have 2,500 words to make your argument and so you will need to be judicious in your coverage and selection of theories and evidence. It will take skill to craft a powerful essay that makes your case within the word count.

5. Transferable Skills for Life and Professional Practice

Your work must provide evidence of the qualities and transferable skills necessary for graduate-level employment requiring the exercise of initiative and personal responsibility and decision-making in complex and unpredictable circumstances. This includes demonstrating: the learning ability for professional development to advance existing skills and acquire new competences of a professional nature that will enable you to assume significant responsibility within organisations; that you can initiate and complete tasks and procedures, whether individually and/or collaboratively; that you can use appropriate media to effectively communicate information, arguments and analysis in a variety of forms to specialist and non-specialist audiences; fluency of expression; clarity and effectiveness in presentation and organisation. Work should be coherent and well-structured in presentation and organisation.

Guidance specific to this assessment: Ensure your essay has an introductory paragraph setting out what will be discussed, a main body of arguments, and a concluding paragraph to end that draws your arguments together. Your essay, in-text citations, and reference list must follow APA formatting conventions and should be perfect.

STUDENT FEEDBACK FORM

This section details the extent to which the assessment criteria are demonstrated by you, which in turn determines your mark. The marks available for each category of skill are shown. Lecturers will use the space provided to comment on the achievement of the task(s), including those areas in which you have performed well and areas that would benefit from development/improvement.

GENERIC ASSESSMENT CRITERIA

Level 6

In accordance with the Framework for Higher Education Qualifications, at the end of Level 6 students should have coherent and detailed knowledge and a systematic understanding of their subject area, at least some of which is informed by the latest research and/or advanced scholarship within the discipline. They will be able to accurately deploy established techniques of analysis and enquiry within a discipline, using their conceptual understanding to devise and sustain arguments and/or to solve problems. They should be aware of the uncertainty, ambiguity and limits of knowledge. They should be able to critically evaluate evidence, arguments, assumptions, abstract concepts and data (that may be incomplete), to make judgements, and to frame appropriate questions to achieve a solution - or identify a range of solutions. They will apply the methods and techniques that they have learned to review, consolidate, extend and apply their knowledge and understanding, and to initiate and carry out projects. They will have the ability to manage their own learning, and to make use of scholarly reviews and primary sources (for example, refereed research articles and/or original materials appropriate to the discipline). They will demonstrate the qualities and transferable skills necessary for employment requiring: the exercise of initiative and personal responsibility; decision-making in complex and unpredictable contexts; the learning ability needed to undertake appropriate further training of a professional or equivalent nature.
