The Event Cycle – The Planning Phase

WEEK 2

Week 1 Recap – Q&A/Quiz

What are the key typologies of Events...?

What are the main impact areas of Events?

In what ways can you measure the success of an event?

What case study did you look into from last week?

Week 2: Session Aim:

- To help identify and understand:
 - Industry sectors
 - The three phases of the event cycle
 - Stakeholders
 - The structure of the industry
 - A breakdown of the planning process
 - The need to manage various stakeholders
 - Sponsorship

Event Sectors ?

- What categories make up the Events Industry?
- Think about the types of Events you have attended over the years to help you create the list.....

Event Types The Event Sector

Managing and Running Events?

- Who manages and runs events?

Businesses / Organisations / Sectors?

- Discuss in groups - (Levels of Involvement?)

- Mardi Gras, New Orleans
- Mardi Gras, Sydney

Running / Managing Events.

What do you need to consider in the running and managing of Events?

The 3 Phases of the Event Cycle

- The planning phase (feasibility)
- The delivery phase
- The evaluation phase

The Planning Phase

- Detailed planning is the basic prerequisite of the process
- The first task is to establish a formal strategic plan
- This should identify the vision and detail the actions that will fulfil and achieve this vision. (Lynch 2009)
- Establish the sequential steps:
 - Establish the vision (Feasibility)
 - Develop the event objectives
 - Implement operational plans
 - Devise control systems
 - Plan for shutdown and evaluation

Considering the Feasibility of an Event

- What do you need to consider in the early stages of an event?
- What are the Key factors to consider in Events ?
- How do you determine its Feasibility ?
- What is meant by Feasibility?

Feasibility Study

Event Objectives

- These should be set in relation to the different areas of the event

e.g. financial objectives, marketing objectives, participation, etc.

- Objectives are important as they provide benchmarks and targets to aim for and performance indicators, which facilitate monitoring and measures for feedback and evaluation.
- To enable this, objectives should conform to the SMART acronym:
 - Specific to areas of the event.
 - Measurable quantitatively i.e. through numbers.
 - Agreed / achievable by organisers and those assigned the tasks.
 - Relevant to the overall aims of the event.
 - Timed within the event schedule.
 - Event aims and objectives - Visit Monmouthshire

Event Objectives

Activity

- For an event, (this could be your proposed “Assignment” event), prepare –
 - 1 event aim
 - 3-4 event objectives
- Carry out some ‘Best Practice’ research

The lead-in period
within the event cycle

The Lead-In Period

What do you believe the Events 'Lead –In' period is?

and

What should it entail ?

The Lead-In Period

What happens during the lead-in period	The impact of a short lead-in period
- Planning - Booking entertainment - Venue sourcing- Sourcing suppliers - Client liaison - Liaison with suppliers, such as caterers - Research schedule Producing documents, i.e. production schedule - Fact-finding	- Limits creativity - as no time - Unavailability of suppliers and venues - Limits choice - Compromises decisions - Costs more - Reactive, rather than proactive management

Factors to consider in the “Planning Process”

1. Define the objectives
2. Set the budget
3. Choose the venue
4. Invite the audience
5. Design the programme content

Factors to consider in the planning process

6. Select catering, entertainment and audio visual provision
7. Workforce planning
8. Liaise with stakeholders and suppliers
9. Determine how/when to evaluate

Project Management Techniques

Creating a work breakdown structure

Bowdin et al (2010)

Organisational Involvement in Events

- Who / What is needed in the Planning / Organising / Running / Managing of Events?
- Bodies? Stakeholders? List as many as you can Possibly thinking of a specific event may help you in this exercise .

Stakeholders

98 Events Management

Bowdin
(2006)

Figure 4.1 The relationship of stakeholders to events

Ex 1: Key 'Body' in Events Planning / Managing = Event DMC's

- A Destination Management Company (DMC) specialises in corporate event management, which includes the delivery of events, tours, staffing and transport, utilising extensive knowledge, expertise and resources.

DMC's services fall into one or more of the following categories:

- Program Design
 - Logistics Management
 - Supplier Management
 - Accounting
- What do you think the benefits of using a DMC are ?

Ex 2: Stakeholders = Sponsorship

- Enormous increase in sponsorship in recent decades
- Sponsorship is now viewed as primary promotional tool in an event's marketing mix
- Successful events can increase brand awareness and sales for sponsors

Sponsors as partners in events

- Creating win/win marketing campaigns

Example of a pyramid structure of sponsorships

Post Events

What do you feel is important to complete after the running of any event?

Project/Event Evaluation

- Comparing task descriptions and planned timelines with actual performance
- Assessing the flexibility of the system
- Evaluating the timeliness of reports
- Assessing the effectiveness of management decisions
- Comparing planned milestones with the reality

Bowdin et al (2010)

Self Study – Assignment 1 Focus

Theme = Equality, Diversity and Inclusion

- Start thinking about where in the world you might choose to host your hospitality event and pick an ideal location.
- You are a business running a MICE event - what is your event (corporate or leisure), give a brief introduction to the event concept/aim
- Using today's session information give a list of 10 things you would consider in your planning specific to that venue
- List 5 stakeholders specific to that venue
- Who might sponsor your event and why? (will you use more than 1 sponsor?)

Recap – The Planning Process

- 1 • Setting up and defining the event objective
- 2 • Setting the event budget
- 3 • Choosing the venue
- 4 • Inviting the audience
- 5 • Designing the programme content
- 6 • Selecting the catering, Ents & AV provision
- 7 • Choosing the event team
- 8 • Liaising with stakeholders and suppliers *
- 9 • Determining how to measure success
