Task A-

I've chosen to compare healthy hair studio by Enitan- Hair coach/Afro hairstylist/Natural hair and Afro therapy salon- hair stylist/Afro hair stylist. I selected these two vacancies because they're closely related to my career interest in afro textured hair and allow me to compare skills required within the industry.

The healthy hair studio by Enitan advert focuses strongly on afro textured hair and natural hair care. The job role involves providing hair coaching, carrying out hair care treatments and understanding different hair care and scalp needs. The advert also places a lot of importance on continuous training and developing knowledge of afro hair, scalp care and hair loss. This shows knowledge isn't just limited to styling but also a successful employee must also understand how to provide safe and appropriate hair care advice for customers.

The afro therapy salon advert also specialises in afro and curly hair. The role requires a stylist who is creative who is creative and very passionate about working with textured hair. Skills required include hair styling, wig installations and lace work as well as also providing exceptional customer service. The employer also offers advance training to help to improve their employee's skills and knowledge.

There are several common skills between these two adverts. these include having good hairdressing ability a lot of hairdressing ability, knowledge of afro textured hair, good customer service skills, professionalism and willingness to continue learning will be needed. both employers show that the individual needs of clients are important because textured hair has different care and styling requirements.

My existing experience gives me a good foundation for these roles. My cv shows experience working as hair stylist, alongside training in hairdressing and skills including cutting colouring afro textured hair, client consultation, teamwork, problem-solving and time management. this means I already have serval of the practical skills needed for both these roles.

One key skill I would like to use in my future employment is client consultation. I would like to listen carefully to each client's requirements. This would help me to provide a personalised experience which helps to builds trust between me and the client and encourages repeat business. developing this skill further will help the progression of my own Afro-hair business.

Task 2-

Ive completed a swot analysis to access my current strengths and weaknesses, opportunities and threats in relation to my current career in the hair dressing industry.

Strengths

One of my main strength's is my practical hairdressing experience. My cv shows my serval years of experience working as a hair stylist, which has allowed me to develop confidence working with my clients and to also understand the expectations of a professional salon environment

.this is really important because employers normally prefer employees who can provide a professional service rather than only having theoretical knowledge.

Another strength I have is my knowledge of how to take good care of afro and textured hair. This is relevant to both vacancies because both employers are looking for someone who specialises in afro hair or naturally textured hair. Afro therapy specifically describes it vacancy as working with afro and naturally textured hair.my experience with different hair types gives me the skills needed to develop an specialist career.

I also have very good customer-service and communication skills. Working with clients requires good communication skills because it helps to understand what they want and as a result ensure that customers leave satisfied and are more likely to return. Which would lead to the business making more money from the increased amount of regular customers.

My cv also shows my other skills including teamwork, problem solving and time management. These are important skills to have in a busy salon because appointments need to be carried well and while also maintaining professional standards. I also understand the importance of maintaining a clean and organised environment to work in.

Weaknesses-

One area I need more development in is my knowledge of scalp health and hair science. Although I do have a lot of practical hairdressing experience, healthy hair studio role places greater emphasis on understanding different scalp needs, hair loss and hair care education. This mean I would benefit a lot from additional training in these specific areas.

I also need to continue to develop my knowledge of new industry trends and techniques. Hairdressing changes regularly particularly within afro hair, wigs, extensions and natural hair styles.so continuing professional development would help me remain competitive because customers will be more encouraged to book with me.

Opportunities

There are several opportunities available for me one is growing demand for afro-hair roles in London .For example afro therapy recruit's stylists specialising afro and naturally curly hair types and provides advanced training when needed. Which is beneficial for me because it will help me to improve my skills and attract more customers to book with me for their hair care

Another opportunity is continuous personal development. Training in scalp care and natural hair, colouring, wig installation and advanced styling would improve my employability. Because specialist business such as healthy hair studio shows how knowledge of hair health can create opportunities in areas such as hair coaching.

Social media could also be another good opportunity. Because by using apps such as Instagram and tik tok to show case my work in a professional way I could attract clients by being able to showcase my work to any potential customers. Which would encourage them to book with me.

Threats-

One threat is the changing customer preferences and trends. If I don't keep up with learning new techniques, styles that customers may want and learning how to use any new hair products that might be trending my skills could become less competitive. This is continuous training is very important to help me stand out against my competition and continue to attract customers .

Also, some higher-level roles may require additional training or experience which I don't have yet . I therefore need to ensure that I continue developing professionally rather than relying only on my existing experience.

Evidence of readiness-

I believe I'm ready for employment because I have a lot of practical experience from my past hairdressing roles and relevant training from schooling .My previous hair dressing experience has helped me to have a better understanding of different client expectations, salon standards and how to consistently provide a consistent professional service. Also, my education and training have developed skills in working with afro textured hair which relate the job adverts I've analysed. I am also willing to keep on learning which is important because the employers value training and development. For example, afro therapy advanced training to improve their employees' skills and knowledge to provide customers with the best experience.

Task 3-

Employment goals

My first goal is to get a job in a professional hair salon where I can focus on improving my skills especially in working with afro textured hair. I also want to improve my confidence when it comes to styling hair and customer service because even though I'm skilled in those things I think there is definitely still room for improvement.

This goal is important because it will help me to gain practical experience, improve my confidence and help me to develop skills needed for career progression.

My second goal is to improve my knowledge of hair and scalp care. I also want to complete additional training and research into different scalp conditions and hair loss to help to provide the best hair treatments for these people. This is important because in my swot analysis identified hair and scalp knowledge is an area I want to develop. Improving this skill will make me more confident advising clients leading to me being able to offer a much better service to my clients.

Personal development plan-

Area to improve	action	Time scale	How I will measure it
Afro-hairstyling	Complete a lot of extra training and practise doing different hair styles	3-6 months	Certificates and collecting honest feedback from my client
Client communication	Practice consultations	1-3 months	Feedback from client or managers

Hair and scalp knowledge	Research hair and scalp care	3 months	Complete training and try applying my knowledge
confidence	Gain more salon experience	6months	Feedback from employers and clients
Business skills	Learn basic marketing and finance	6 months	By trying to complete business tasks

This personal development plan will help me to greatly improve my skills and work towards my employment goals.
