Common Assessment Criteria Applied	Marks Available	Marks Awarded
General Comments
Difficult to comment here - as mentioned you have studied the web module in year 1 and liitle to no skills have been shown in this website. JS does not work, no JQuery. Is this a case of not reading the rubric or starting this seriously late. For completeness, forthcoming web sites are considerably more complex and you approach must be reflected upon, what has been submitted is not the standard of the "Typcial" level 5 student	100	8

2. Knowledge and Understanding Skills
Considering this was an assignment that was suppose to demonstrate your skills with JS/Jquery, there is very little JS/Jquery in this website. For what was coded, it does not work effectively - or did you test it to a good standard.	15	2
3. Cognitive and Intellectual Skills
This section leads to your experiences in developing this website with JS/Jquery and not a simple case of here is a feature and there is the code - what approaches did you use in developing. For completeness, this report is badly laid out and considering this is year 2 of the HND programme, you really need to consider how you format a report that is suitable for year 2 studie	15	3
4. Practical Application Skills
Considering you have completed the introduction to web design module last year, it is obvious that you have not taken these skills forward and use modern frameworks e.g., Bootstrap. There is minimal JS in this website which does not work effectively - did you test it ?. With regards to JQuery, there is none present. This is a poor submission and should have been a case of showcasing your skills. Finally, if you examine your HTML, you have hard coded links to images - is this a case of not understanding this technique !!!	70	3
