STUDENT IDENTIFICATION

Each candidate must sign the Seating List confirming presence at the examination. All candidates for final examinations are required to place their University of Calgary student I.D. cards on their desks for the duration of the examination. (Students writing mid-term tests can also be asked to provide identity proof.) Students without an I.D. card who can produce an acceptable alternative I.D., e.g., one with a printed name and photograph are allowed to write the examination. A student without acceptable I.D. will be required to complete an Identification Form. The form indicates that there is no guarantee that the examination paper will be graded if any discrepancies in identification are discovered after verification with the student's file. A student who refuses to produce identification or who refuses to complete and sign the Identification Form is not permitted to write the examination.

EXAMINATION RULES

- (1) Students late in arriving will not normally be admitted after one-half hour of the examination time has passed.
- (2) No candidate will be permitted to leave the examination room until one-half hour has elapsed after the opening of the examination, nor during the last 15 minutes of the examination. All candidates remaining during the last 15 minutes of the examination period must remain at their desks until their papers have been collected by an invigilator.
- (3) All inquiries and requests must be addressed to supervisors only.
- (4) The following is strictly prohibited:
 - (a) speaking to other candidates or communicating with them under any circumstances whatsoever;
 - (b) bringing into the examination room any textbook, notebook or document not authorized by the examiner;
 - (c) making use of calculators, cameras, cell-phones, computers, head-sets, pagers, PDA's, or any device not authorized by the examiner;
 - (d) leaving answer papers exposed to view;
 - (e) attempting to read other student's examination papers.The penalty for violation of these rules is suspension or expulsion or such other penalty as may be determined.
- (5) Candidates are requested to write on both sides of the page, unless the examiner has asked that the left hand page be reserved for rough drafts and calculations.
- (6) Discarded matter is to be struck out and not removed by mutilation of the examination answer book.
- (7) Candidates are cautioned against writing in their answer book any matter extraneous to the actual answering of the question set.
- (8) The candidate is to write his/her name on each answer book as directed and is to number each book.
- (9) During the examination a candidate must report to a supervisor before leaving the examination room.
- (10) Candidates must stop writing when the signal is given. Answer books must be handed to the supervisor-in-charge promptly. Failure to comply with these regulations will be cause for rejection of an answer paper.
- (11) If during the course of an examination a student becomes ill or receives word of domestic affliction, the student must report at once to the supervisor, hand in the unfinished paper and request that it be cancelled. If physical and/or emotional ill health is the cause, the student must report at once to a physician/counsellor so that subsequent application for a deferred examination is supported by a completed Physician/Counsellor Statement form. Students can consult professionals at University Health Services or Counselling and Student Development Centre during normal working hours or consult their physician/counsellor in the community. Once an examination has been handed in for marking a student cannot request that the examination be cancelled for whatever reason. Such a request will be denied. Retroactive withdrawals will also not be considered.

But consider that they are lying about these things.

You will easily understand it from this: for, sirs, I have a friend, as I mentioned before, named Sostratos, and being on close terms, he dined with me after I encountered him coming from the country around sunset. And when it seemed good to him, he left my house and departed.

So then, first consider, sirs: that if, on that night, I was plotting against Eratosthenes, whether it was better for me myself to dine elsewhere, or to bring someone in with me as a dinner-guest? For then, this man would be less likely to dare enter my house. Moreover, is it likely that I would send my dinner-guest away, and be left alone and deserted, or is it likely that I would tell him to stay, so that he could exact punishment on the adulterers with me?

Furthermore, sirs, does it not seem likely to you that I would summon my closest friends by day, and tell them to gather together at the house of the nearest of my friends, rather than, as soon as I learned Eratosthenes was in my house, run about during the night, not knowing who I would catch at home and who was out?

And I went to Harmodius and then to another person, but they were not in the city (for I did not know), and I found that others were not at home, but taking those that I could, I went home. And indeed, if I had known beforehand, do you not think that I would have summoned helpers, and sent word to my friends, so that I myself could have entered the bedroom as safely as possible (for how could I have known if that man also had a weapon?) and exact the penalty with as many witnesses as possible? But knowing nothing of what would happen on that night, then, I took along whomever I was able to find. And now bring up for me the witnesses of these events.

Section B
Lysias - On the Olive Stomp.

Previously, counsellors, I thought it was possible for one who desired it to have neither law suits nor troubles, by living a quiet life. But now, infact, I have unexpectedly fallen victim to vexatious and troublesome slanderers, so that, some how, it seems to me to be necessary as well for those who are not already doing so, to be afraid over the things that are about to happen: for, because of these things, there is a common danger both to those who do no wrong, and to those who commit many wrongs.
