

Element 3 – Paraphrasing Activity

Instructions

Read the following text and answer the questions below (please type your responses in the space underneath each question). Once complete, upload your document in the relevant submission link.

This can be found in the 'Assignment 2 – Portfolio Submissions' section on your moodle page.

'On the 5th July 1948 an historic moment occurred in British history, a culmination of a bold and pioneering plan to make healthcare no longer exclusive to those who could afford it but to make it accessible to everyone. The NHS was born.'

The National Health Service, abbreviated to NHS, was launched by the then Minister of Health in Attlee's post-war government, Aneurin Bevan, at the Park Hospital in Manchester. The motivation to provide a good, strong and reliable healthcare to all was finally taking its first tentative steps.

The creation of the NHS in 1948 was the product of years of hard work and a motivation from various figures who felt the current healthcare system was insufficient and needed to be revolutionised.'

(Brain, 2020)

1. Paraphrase the first paragraph below -

An important turning point in British history was reached on July 5, 1948, when a daring and innovative scheme to make healthcare available to everyone—not just the wealthy—came to fruition. The NHS came into being.

2. Paraphrase the second paragraph below –

Aneurin Bevan, the minister of health in Attlee's post-war administration, officially opened the National Health Service, or NHS, at Manchester's Park Hospital. The drive to offer everyone access to high-quality, dependable healthcare was at last beginning to take tentative shape.

3. Paraphrase the final paragraph below –

A combination of years of arduous labour and the conviction of many that the existing healthcare system was inadequate and needed to be transformed resulted in the establishment of the National Health Service (NHS) in 1948.

4. Summarise the document as a whole below –

In summary, the National Health Service (NHS) was established in the United Kingdom on July 5, 1948. This historic event marked a significant shift in British healthcare, transitioning from a system accessible only to those who could afford it to one available to everyone. The NHS was launched by Aneurin Bevan, the Minister of Health in Attlee's post-war government, at the Park Hospital in Manchester. Its creation was the culmination of years of effort and the shared vision of various individuals who recognised the need for a fundamental healthcare system transformation. This initiative represented the first steps towards providing robust and reliable healthcare for all citizens.