

This is a very interesting well written essay that makes excellent use of some difficult reading material & the topic. Indeed, you've successfully brought together different strands of a range of relevant arguments, reasoning, leading to a well-considered conclusion. There is a correct/independently appears in your treatment of material (through you use of examples, for instance) in terms of improvement in places it would be beneficial to incorporate a little more of what our philosophers have said - your writing style is very fluid & so I think you'd be confident at doing this without losing focus on the main chosen author(s).
