

An aerial photograph of a river delta, showing intricate patterns of turquoise and green water flowing through a network of brown, sediment-filled channels and islands. The water's color suggests the presence of minerals or algae. The land areas are a mix of dark brown and lighter tan, indicating different sediment compositions and vegetation. The overall scene is a complex, organic web of water and land.

Task 1: Choose a suitable theme to be presented to a group of children creating two differentiated activities to introduce them. The rationale for choosing the theme and the main aims attached to the activities should be noted. The proposed audience should be noted, and the type of language teaching opportunities that the activities would offer when teaching Welsh as a second language in the English medium sector. (up to 400 words)

Task 2: Introduce a thematic session and two differentiated activities for a group of children during your PAP period. You will need to film the session and the activities to be analyzed by you and to present it as part of the module's assessment. (up to 8 minutes)

Task 3: A written reflection on Task 2. (up to 1600 words)

You may record your lesson in any format in order to upload to YouTube. You should include a link to your clip within the document that you upload to Turnitin.

It is YOUR RESPONSIBILITY to ensure that the clip works and can be viewed by the marker.
