Previous teaching experiences

For the past three and a half years I have been working in a Special Needs School in Llanelli. I worked as a one to one support and a classroom TA. During my time as a one to one support assistant I would plan and implement activities, help with therapies and physical therapy programs and deal with behaviour management. For one month I became a HLTA covering a teacher due to illness. During this time I was in charge of the daily runnings of the classroom and planning of trips. I also worked alongside parents and the other support staff in the classroom. Throughout my time in this school I undertook extra curricular duties. I was in charge of the organisation and runnings of weekly equine therapy sessions and organised the staff Secret Santa every year. I also attended Llangrannog trip every year where we would stay with pupils and support them on their trip away from home.

About Me

My name is Samantha Jones. I am 25 years old and come from Llanelli. I enjoy being outdoors particularly camping and going for walks. I enjoy sports and exercise. I have played rugby for a local team for 4 years and I go to the gym regularly. I love listening to music and dancing and I used to choreograph staff dances for a charity night in my previous job. I am also very crafty. I will knit, crochet and sew in my spare time.

The kind of teacher I aspire to be

I aspire to be the teacher that makes the children feel safe whilst in my care. I understand that children come from all walks of life, but in my classroom we are a team who pick each other up and support each other throughout the day. I also want to be the teacher that encourages discovery and influences the children to be inquisitive. The children can help me learn just as much as I can help them learn.

Reasons for entering the teaching profession

From the age of 14 I knew that I wanted to become a Primary school teacher one day. I started volunteering in a local children's club from the aged of 11 and loved working with the children every week. From a young age I knew I wanted a career working with children. So when the GCSE choices came in Year 9, I choose to undertake a GCSE in Childcare. From there I continued my studies in childcare and primary education and these experiences have made my passion to one day become a primary school teacher deepen.
