I choose visual communication as my major is very occasional. When I went to university, there are a few majors of design in our school, then I decide to choose visual communication which sounds very cool. So at present, as a postgraduate, I still want to continue to have a further study in this area. And I enjoy the process of design thinking, which can put my thought into practice.

My family can't understand why I choose this one. I tell them that I want change the world, I want change what people see. Hope to help people feeling better when they wake up every day, see something more pretty, I believe that what people see can ^{influence} ~~change~~ ~~infa~~ ~~influ~~ what they think. I like design people home (apartment). I had a few chances to design for houses. I really enjoy that, I can imagine when the host wake up at home everyday, the feeling will be so great. it is a lovely home. I love what I ^{major} ~~major~~.
