‘…but this is London; and there are no fields. Only fields of operation and observation, only fields of electromagnetic attraction and repulsion, only fields of hatred and coercion. Only force fields.’

‘For the perfect flâneur, for the passionate spectator, it is an immense joy to set up house in the heart of the multitude, amid the ebb and flow of movement, in the midst of the fugitive and the infinite.’

‘Psychogeography could set for itself the study of the precise laws and specific effects of the geographical environment, whether consciously organized or not, on the emotions and behavior of individuals.’

‘Armed with a reporter’s instinct for a good story, Mark Power began an investigation that would lead him across the dislocated landscape of British identity and into the corners of his own memory and imagination

His approach as a photographer is not rigid and analytical, rather his journey appears to us as one of restless observation, he is the discreet onlooker, sensitive to the grand gestures and minor inflections of life as it unfolds before his camera.’

David Chandler

Seminar task: Ralph Rumney, Boyle Family or Robert MacFarlane?

Complete a psychogeographical drift.

Please note that you should follow lockdown rules, maintaining social-distancing and wearing a mask as necessary!

You could do this by drawing a circle on a map, blindly throwing a dart at a map, getting on a bus or train without checking the destination and getting off when you feel it is appropriate, or some unconscious signal indicates you should etc. Visit a place of significance or follow a significant route (Ralph Rumney's Venice drift was based on a relationship).

Record it in a manner you feel appropriate: photography, video, writing, sound recording or a combination of these. Present your findings in 2 weeks, in digital form on Teams. There may not be time to discuss every piece of work, but everyone will have time to experience the ambience of your endeavour.

Consider: chance, atmosphere, responses to strangers (but only at 2 metres or greater distance), surprise, the pleasure of keen observation

Thank You
