

MARKING CRITERIA and STUDENT FEEDBACK

This section details the assessment criteria. The extent to which these are demonstrated by you determines your mark. The marks available for each criterion are shown. Lecturers will use the space provided to comment on the achievement of the task(s), including those areas in which you have performed well and areas that would benefit from development/improvement.

Common Assessment Criteria Applied	Marks Available	Marks Awarded
1. Engagement with Literature Skills
From what has been presented for this assessment, there are a number of valid reference points listed. However, could there have been some opportunity for more diverse research i.e., you have similar points of reference - did you consider "other" points of reference	20	15
2. Knowledge and Understanding Skills
From the scripts provided, they show a good level of understanding on how to produce scripts. Scripts generated have a valid purpose and show a number of constructs when scripting for Windows/Linux. Was there an opportunity to embrace the lecture notes for this subject matter and could have translated into a more "complex" script. Remember, assessment brief does hint at script(s) - missed opportunity to demonstrate more skills	20	15
3. Cognitive and Intellectual Skills
A brief overview of the functions of the OS and could have easily been enhanced by supporting images that would have made this discussion more relevant	10	5
4. Practical Application Skills
Considering that command line scripting is difficult, you have done a good job on creating scripts for Windows/Linux that have a usefulness in their function and have also demonstrated some good use of constructs. However, the assessment brief does hints at script(s). With regards to the CLI commands a number of which have been identified and utilised, the running commentry/screen dumps are fine, but could you have supported this from a point of view of the CLI help processor	40	30
5. Transferable Skills for Life and Professional Practice
Report is well presented, easy to read/follow and there are a number of elements that are referenced, please focus on how to apply referencing within the body of the report.	10	7
