Upon loading of your simulation - communication between all devices and loopback are not responding - this translates to the routing not being configured correctly	20	0
4. Practical Application Skills
External elements (Packet Tracer task/Final Exam on NetAcad) are all fine Devices on Packet Tracer have been setup correctly. Initial router configuration and their interfaces are setup for IPV4, but not IPV6 and its basic configuration is missing a number of key element i.e., disabling domain lookup, MOTD and password for accessing ports. Setup of routing protocols not setup at all - you should have been using RIP2 (its in the brief), this translates to no communication between the routers, thus pings will not work. However, the configuration of the switch has been correctly setup. Due to simple misconfiguration of the AS1, telnet was not correct configures and PC1 could not connect. For completeness, VLAN1 one has not been setup at all. Just one final thought - be mindful of the differences between FUH/LUH as a misquoted IPV4 address will ensure your simulation will not work as the scenario wants Simple message here, you should have been practicing the various practical elements from NetAcad as they cover all elements from this practical	80	40
